HITTIN' THE ROAD, JACK

Gordon Barnes is ready to retire.

It's been since 1999 when Gordon Barnes stepped in the locally owned bank, hired at the Antwerp Exchange Bank. Everyone from this area knows Gordon at the bank. He has a jovial attitude (most of the time!) that makes you just want to do business locally. His radiant smile and funny jokes keep you coming back for more, not to mention he holds the keys to the vault!

Though he's retiring from Antwerp Exchange Bank to spend time with his wife and family, he didn't start there. His parents (deceased) were George and Nellie Barnes. He graduated from Fort Wayne Central Catholic High School in 1966. For some it seems like a long time ago, but for Gordon it hasn't been that long at all. He went straight from high school into being drafted for the the Vietnam War where he served two tours in the southeastern Asian country. He came back to the states and started working at the People's Trust Bank in Terra Haute, Indiana. He then received a phone call from Summit Bank in Fort Wayne and wanted to know if he knew any good banker that might be wanting to work in the Fort Wayne area. He said, "I sure do. Me!" And off went,

THE PRODIGAL PILOT

Sharon and Robert Wearley with Genie Bishop

Robert Wearly, originally from Woodburn, recently returned with his new book, The Prodigal Pilot, to the Woodburn Branch Library. Saturday, December 6, he and his wife, Sharon, came back to greet family and friends and those wanting to know about his extraordinary life.

Wearly worked his way through high school at the local grocery. It was Norm's Grocery Store then and he began at age 12 as a carryout boy and shelf stocker. He worked there until he was 19, at which point he went into the newly formed Air Force following graduation from Woodburn High School in 1951. Much of the book takes place with Bob's early life in Woodburn.

From 1951 to 1954 Robert trained to be a pilot. He started in propeller flights and quickly moved on to the jets as they became more popular for military operations in a C-5 Transport. He spent 17 years in active service.

HOW WOULD YOU DE-SCRIBE YOUR WORK?

Winning the Battle for a Generation by: Pastor Rick

On a number of occasions I've had someone out of curiosity ask me, "What do you do for a living?" Sometimes I answered, "I am a minister," other times I responded, "I help people who are lost." One of the joys I've found in my work is to remember that I am here to make a difference. What about you? How would you describe your work?

A team of researchers from the University of Michigan and Yale studied how people in unglamorous jobs coped with their often devalued work. When the researchers tried to think of supposedly unrewarding jobs to study, they chose hospital janitors. But what they learned from their studies took them completely by surprise.

When the researchers interviewed the cleaning staff of a major hospital in the Midwest, they discovered that a certain subset of housekeepers didn't see themselves as part of the janitorial staff at all. They saw themselves as part of the professional staff, as part of the healing team. And that changed everything. These people would get to know the patients and their families and would offer support in small but important ways: a box of Kleenex here, a glass of water there, or a word of encouragement. One housekeeper reported rearranging pictures on the walls of comatose patients, with the hope that a change of scenery might have some positive effect. The researchers coined a term for what these special housekeepers brought to their job—job crafting. Job crafting means that people take their existing job expectations—or job descriptions—and expand them to suit their desire to make a difference. Job crafters are those who do what's expected (because it's required) and then find a way to add something new to their work. Something that delights. Something that benefits both the giver and the receiver. One of the lead researchers put it this way: "People who job-craft don't just reshape their jobs to make life better for themselves, but to serve others in some beneficial way."

With respect to our life's work we are to remember who it is we work for, our Lord Jesus. The Apostle Paul put it this way... Colossians 3:23 (NIV), "Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord, not for men...'

DUPONT HOSPITAL RE-CEIVES ACCREDITATION FOR BOTH ITS IN-LAB & AT-HOME SLEEP TESTING FOR PATIENTS

Dupont Hospital Center for Sleep Health recently received program accreditation from the American Academy of Sleep Medicine. The accreditation will be valid for five years for both in-lab and at-home sleep studies.

As part of the accreditation process, staff successfully demonstrated their dedication to the advancement of sleep medicine, both in terms of the care they provide and in their commitment to increasing the awareness of sleep health. Dupont offers in-lab and at-home sleep studies to determine potential sleep disorders a patient may be experiencing.

The American Academy of Sleep Medicine congratulates Dupont Hospital Center for Sleep Health on meeting the high standards required for receiving accreditation as a sleep disorders center," said Dr. Timothy Morgenthaler, AASM president. "Dupont Hospital Center for Sleep Health is an important resource to the local medical community and will provide academic and scientific value in addition to the highest quality care for patients suffering from sleep disorders." Dupont Hospital Center for Sleep Health is directed by Ammar Ghanem, MD, FAASM, and is located on Dupont Hospital's campus at 2514 E. Dupont Road, Suite 120. Dupont's team features physicians board-certified in sleep medicine, including a pediatric specialist and a caring staff of sleep technologists and respiratory therapists.

A physician's order is required for a full sleep study, although free at-home sleep screening is also available through the Dupont sleep center. To receive accreditation for a five-year period, a hospital must meet or exceed all standards for professional healthcare as designated by the AASM. These standards address core areas such as personnel, facility and equipment, policies and procedures, data acquisition, patient care, and quality assurance. Additionally, a sleep center's goals must include plans for positively affecting the quality of medical care in the community.

The American Academy of Sleep Medicine is a professional medical society for clinicians, researchers, and other health care providers in the field of sleep medicine. As the national accrediting body for sleep disorders centers, the AASM is dedicated to setting standards and promoting excellence in sleep medicine healthcare, education and research. The American Academy of Sleep Medicine first accredited a sleep disorders center in 1977. Today there are more than 2,500 AASM-accredited sleep centers across the country.

WCCH CORE VALUES

When I first joined the ministry of the Woodburn Christian Children's Home many years ago, I became acquainted with certain Core Values ... foundational commitments... that have remained constant and true throughout the passage of time:

WCCH is a MINISTRY of Christian Churches and Churches of Christ. While many children's homes today are built by churches... most are funded and populated by government agency. WCCH has chosen to remain more closely associated with the church in response to its spiritual mandate in James 1:27. WCCH is proud to have earned the broad support of the Christian community throughout WCCH accepts no public funds, but is entirely funded by private contributions. Government funding is always available, and "free" money can be appealing. But the truth is...Whoever gives you their money... you owe them something... and WCCH would rather owe faithfulness to our churches & supporters than to any government agency.

WCCH accepts only private placements referred primarily through the churches. The family is dear to God's heart and WCCH is committed to work with the family. Note: Parents do NOT give up guardianship when a child is placed at WCCH.

WCCH provides a home to children without regard for their ability to pay. No child has ever been turned away because they couldn't pay the bill. Families in crisis need help. Typically, less than ten percent of our income for budget comes from the families of children in placement.

WCCH integrates the Christian faith into every-day life; no part of our daily life will be separated from the expression of our faith. WCCH could accomplish many worthy goals but if, in the end, we haven't taught our kids who Jesus is and given them an opportunity to commit their lives to Him, we haven't done all that we intend to do.

There they are... the Core Values of the Woodburn Christian Children's Home. In a world not known for its transparency, we desire to be known and supported for who we are and what we do. We promise to be faithful.

Lee & Kay Strang were the first Administrators/Houseparents at WCCH. Here they are with one of our first WCCH Families, circa 1972. Thank you, Lee & Kay, for laying a firm foundation for the WCCH Ministry.

The Woodburn Christian Children's Home receives no public funds. We operate entirely on donations from individuals, churches, business and organizations. This State-Licensed Residential Child-Care Ministry provides a Christian family environment for children who need a home. Our cost of caring for a child is less than half the average cost of residential child-care throughout the tri-state area. Over the years, we have provided a home for many children who had no ability to pay. YOUR PRAYERS AND CONTRIBUTIONS ARE GREATLY APPRECIATED.

CHRISTMAS WITHOUT DISTRACTION

By: Rev. Gerry Weesner. Maples United Methodist Church

"The beginning of the gospel about Jesus Christ, the Son of God. ...John came, baptizing in the desert region and preaching a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins. The whole Judean countryside and all the people of Jerusalem went out to him. Confessing their sins, they were baptized by him in the Jordan River. John wore clothing made of camel's hair, with a leather belt around his waist, and he ate locusts and wild honey. And this was his message: 'After me will come one more powerful than I, the thongs of whose sandals I am not worthy to stoop down and untie. I baptize you with water, but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit.' At that time Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized by John in the Jordan. As Jesus was coming up out of the water, he saw heaven being torn open and the Spirit descending on him like a dove. And a voice came from heaven: 'You are my Son, whom I love; with you I am well pleased." Mark 1:1, 4-11 (NIV).

Of his birth and death, which one did Jesus ask us to remember? It was his death, which he urged his followers to recall whenever they gathered to break bread in the Communion fellowship. Most of the early church followed his lead. Origen, an outstanding church teacher and theologian of the third century, actually thought it was a sin to observe Christ's birthday. Christians of his day were expecting the Second Coming and had little interest in observing the anniversary of his first coming. It was only after more than 300 years had passed that the church tied a celebration of Jesus' birth to an existing mid-winter festival, and Christmas as a Christian observance began.

Mark does not include a birth story in his gospel. The baptism account is enough to tell his readers that Jesus is the Son of God. He doesn't need the manger story or angels singing or shepherds or Wise Men. When Jesus first appears in Mark, he is already a grown man. Mark recognizes that what Jesus did as a man was more important than that which happened at his birth.

Mark tells us that after John was arrested, Jesus set out for Galilee saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near; repent, and believe in the good news." That sentence is the Christmas message without distraction, and the reason is that those lines tell us that a dramatic change has taken place, a change that would make people's lives so much better that it has to be called good news. In calling his message good news, Jesus does not point to himself, although he is part of the good news, but to the work of God. In following the story of Jesus, we discover that he spoke about a kingdom of God that is marked by justice, love, peace and holiness. With Jesus, the kingdom of God has come near, and you and I become a part of it by repenting and believing the good news. That's the unadorned message of Christmas, the message without distraction. At Christmas, we celebrate Jesus' birth which signaled the start of God's new plan of salvation.

The Savior was born at Christmas that is reason for hope and joy in God's expression of peace and love.

Recently, someone proposed we eliminate this distortion by having two Christmases every year—one secular and one sacred. Let those who are not religious celebrate the secular holiday, and let those who are religious observe the sacred commemoration. Certainly, it's important to talk about Christmas without distortion, but we can do so without having two Christmases. We Christians already know there's a distortion of the "real meaning of Christmas" in the Santa Claus and Rudolph side of the observance, but most of us have learned how to walk on both paths of the Christmas observance without losing our footing. Let's not waste time beating either merchants or partygoers over the head with "Keep Christ in Christmas" signs. Frankly, most of us enjoy some of the things that go with the secular side of Christmas—the lights, the music, the family gatherings, the excitement of small children, the coziness, the wishes of good cheer and so on.

Another kind of distor-

But there's a different kind of distortion we should avoid. one applying to the "real" meaning of Christmas. We might get a glimpse of that distortion if we had in our midst someone who'd grown up in some other religion and didn't have any experience with Christianity. Imagine such a person noticing that we start decorating our churches for Christmas a month ahead of time, light more candles each Sunday leading up to it, have an extra service on Christmas Eve, have Nativity scenes on our lawns and have a significant section of our hymnbook filled with carols about the birth of Jesus. We can see how that person might say, "Oh, I see, Christianity is all about celebrating the birth of Jesus." What would you say in response? Obviously, Christianity does celebrate the birth of Jesus, but we'd also have to say that that is not what Christianity is all about. In fact, to be accurate, we'd have to say that the birth of Jesus is only a small part of what Christianity is about. But you see, by looking at the many religious things we do about Christmas, it's possible for someone to get a distorted view of Christianity. When it comes to that, it's quite possible for us to get such a distorted view too. As far as we know, the early church did not celebrate Jesus' birth at all, although, judging from the gospels, they apparently knew some of the birth stories. Aside from the gospels, however, the rest of the New Testament books, all of which date from the time after Jesus' ascension, say not one word about his birth; they do talk, however, about his resurrection.

Now, loved ones something to think about: the question I might ask, do you believe there is an eternal place of pain and suffering for those who do not obey the way of salvation giving in the New Testament? If not, you will. The rich man had all a man could want and enjoy in the world. The rich man had no need then as Jesus told the story the rich man, being in torments lift up his

Go ahead laugh, do all you want to discredit Jesus, but unless you turn to Jesus and receive salvation you will also be wanting a drop of water. Jesus has a way, only one way that we can be saved, this is what the New Testament teaches, I believe this, teach this so that I one day will meet my Lord and savior Jesus Christ. This afternoon at about 4:25, I almost killed two peo-I was traveling east on CR

206 in the 9000 mile, at about 50 mph. I saw a blue car backing from a driveway on the south side of the road. When I realized that the driver was not stopping, I blew my horn and applied my brakes as hard as I could, continuing to blow my horn. Neither the driver of the blue car or his passenger turned in my direction, but continued into the roadway and finally stopped completely blocking the roadway. I was less than 3 feet from the passenger side of their car when they noticed me. If I had not been alert enough to see their irresponsible behavior both of them and perhaps me and my passenger would have been killed. I sat there with my heart pounding in my chest. What did they do? Backed to the east, facing in my direction, then went west, looked at me like I had done something wrong, and continued on world were you thinking? What was the noise level in your car that you could not hear my horn blowing? Or are you deaf? If so than you need to take extra measures to drive safely. If the driver was impaired, the passenger, whose back was toward me, has more responsibility for their own safety, and others. In the past two weeks

I drove over 1650 miles to Georgia and back and did not encounter anything that scared me as much as this.

This was not my fault. This was not the fault of the road. It was the negligence of the driver of the blue car that caused this incidence. I hope he is more careful in the future, before he kills someone.

While he was in the Air Force, Robert received a phone call asking him if he would be interested in taking command of the Howard Hughes Personal Fleet of air vehicles. "Certainly!" he replied, and moved out to Texas, becoming Chief Pilot for Hughes' personal fleet of aircraft, in addition to his long and distinguished flying career in military, corporate, and commercial aviation. In his book, he gives readers a behind-the-scenes look at the often strange, always eccentric inner workings of the Hughes Empire. Bob also details the connection between the Hughes organization and the Nixon White House and reveals the real reason why Nixon ordered the Watergate break-in that ultimately forced his resignation. Along the way, he was exposed to challenges that compromised his integrity, resulting in the title of Prodigal Pilot he chose for the book.

With over 14,000 hours in the air, Robert has flown for large commercial airlines including Royal Jordanian Airlines, and Singapore Airlines. He is a top-notch pilot flying the ubiquitous Boeing 747.

In 1986, Bob moved away from government affairs and political scandals, and started his own company called Commercial Filter Services.

In 1996 after meeting Sharon, they were married and between their families they now have seven children, 15 grandchildren, and 2 great-grandchildren.

RACE, CLASS, & VIOLENCE

By: Winslow Myers David Brook's December 2 column in the NYTimes arguing that classism, not racism, is what really ails our nation came off as one of the more racially tone-deaf commentaries so far on events in Ferguson. What must it feel like for an African-American to take in Brooks's examination of 21st century class differences by means of a description of 19th century conditions in Britain: "The people who lived in these slums were often described as more like animals than human beings. For example, in an 1889 essay in The Palace Journal, Arthur Morrison described, "Dark, silent, uneasy shadows passing and crossing — human vermin in this reeking sink, like goblin exhalations from all that is noxious around. Women with sunken, blackrimmed eyes, whose pallid faces appear and vanish by the light of an occasional gas lamp, and look so like ill-covered skulls that we start at their stare. 'Proper' people of that era had both a disgust and fascination for those who lived in these untouchable realms. They went slumming into the poor neighborhoods, a sort of poverty tourism that is the equivalent of today's reality TV or the brawlers that appear on 'The Jerry Springer

To be fair, later in the column it becomes clear that Brooks doesn't buy this as a valid comparison with our own times. But that begs the question, why did he attempt it? Not only does it come across as grossly racist, but also he is grossly mistaken to assume that class not race explains the divide in our country between white and black. Most if not all of the latent classism in our country originates in the kind of institutionalized racism that the tragedy of Ferguson has brought into sharp relief.

I know a little more than I want to about Brooks's tone-deafness because I happen to be a privileged white who attended elite schools and colleges. I cringe when I look back at my experience at Princeton in the late 1950s: my class (in the sense of the year I graduated, but the other meaning works too) included one African-American, and we were served daily in our dining commons by a young black waiters in white coats whose service we took so completely for granted that their invisibility to us future Masters of the Universe was total. I remember attending a party in Princeton where a distinguished alum had recently returned from a diplomatic posting in an African country. His jolly, oblivious stereotyping of the native peoples where he had served was such a Faulknerian caricature that it would have been laughable if it hadn't felt so sad and dangerous. I also recall slowly awakening to the challenge of making connections across the divide of our racially split culture when I read John Howard Griffin's classic Black Like Me, published in 1961, a year before I graduated. Griffin, a white, worked with a doctor to chemically darken his skin and immersed himself in a six-week voyage through the Deep South. The strain of the terror and deprivation he endured simply surviving as a black man brought him close to breakdown. White people six decades later could do worse than take another look at Griffin's harrowing tale as a way to learn what it means to be on the receiving end of both passive stares of exclusionary indifference and active stares of hate and fear. What happened between

it to the world a toxic mix of deep structural racism and the casual escalation of violence as a "solution" to conflict. Racism shades into every aspect of American life, including the patronizing and obstructive attitude of many in the Congress toward the President, clearly to them a black man who is too confidently sassy and "uppity" to know his place. It even extends to our international policies, where violence toward others of swarthier skin and alien creed is more often the first resort than the last. Tragically and ironically, it therefore implicates our own first African-American president in the murderous, too-rapidly-escalating, international-law-violating vengefulness that motivates our endless "war on terror," as our political Masters of the Universe join the headlong rush to create enemies faster than we can kill them.

among so many that exhib-

A single statistic utterly gives the lie to the idea that change is impossible in our country: Darren Wilson fired more shots into Michael Brown than the entire police in England and Wales fired at people in 2013.

PAULDING COUNTY HOSPI-TAL FUND RAISING EFFORT

Paulding County Hospital has announced that it is launching a campaign to raise $500,000 for a new mammography machine. The hospital was the first in the area to offer digital mammography when the current equipment was purchased. That technology was a tremendous improvement over the old system which utilized film. THE LOBO TANK BUSTERS

By Stan Jordan

Our logo is painted on the side of the engine cowling of the fusel lodge, it is the Komono Dragon, or sometimes called the Monitor Lizard. He is a nasty rodent found mostly in Indonesia.

What makes him nasty is his slobber, and his saliva. They will paralyze his opponent so then he will eat it. They can grow to 150lbs sometimes. We think our bullets are as dangerous as the dragon.

Our 589th fighter wing has only four pilots and twelve crewmen and we are not authorized to have a jeep. But, let me tell you how we acquired our jeep. It took a little thought, shenanigans, and a little American ingenuity.

One of the crewmen had a buddy that was telling about an American type junkyard of wrecked trucks and vehicles. It is called the Devonshire Recycling Corps. Some of the vehicles have been wrecked and some were beat up by exploding bombs, they had to be taken off the high-

Col. Beanbridge came over, we talked to him about going over to the junkyard and finding us a jeep that we could repair ourselves sort of a scavenger job.

Well, the Col liked the idea and he fell in with us whole-

So the Col. and his driver and three of our pilots rode in the Col.'s Jeep and we had four men in our truck.

The Devonshire Junkyard

was just at the south of London, so we got there in good time. The Col. used his authority and got us in without much trouble.

So we went right to the Jeep area and there was quite a few wrecked Jeeps with all kinds of repair needed.

We knew what we wanted, to get one with a good straight frame and one with an engine and radiator that hadn't been hurt. The other repairs we could do ourselves.

We found one we all agreed on, it looked bad it had been rolled over a few times, but S/Sgt. Homer Isenghut, a body and fender man from Rural Hall, NC, said it was mostly metal repair. But, we had to go find a good top with rods and side curtains, an extra gasoline can, and two good wheels and tires. The Col. sent the boys out to find and return with these objects, while he and I took the two bent wheels off the jeep. I will finish the rest of this story

HIGHWAY RIGHT OF WAY ENCROACHMENTS OCCUR-RING FREQUENTLY

Putting up a mailbox, installing a drainage pipe beneath a driveway, or cleaning out a ditch are all normal activities property owners routinely undertake. But if done improperly and without the permission of the Ohio Department of Transportation, serious legal ramifications could result.

We are urging property owners to contact us before they do any type of work along a state highway. It's much better to work with us ahead of a project rather than create a problem in the end which requires reversal," said Kirk Slusher, Ohio Department of Transportation District 1 deputy director.

The following are the most common kinds of activities which can sometimes conflict with state requirements:

Mailboxes - mailboxes can be a roadside hazard if guidelines for mailbox placement and type are not adhered to. Visit the United States Postal Service for guidance at: https://www.usps. com/manage/mailboxes.htm.

• Ditch cleaning – Before performing any work in or along a ditch, check with the local ODOT garage to ensure the waterway is not located within highway right of way. Strict environmental regulations must be followed when working within a state-controlled waterway. A permit is required prior to this type of work taking place.

• Snow removal - Snow removed from a private driveway and placed onto a highway is in violation of Ohio Revised Code. Placing anything on the highway could be dangerous to motorists in that they may hit these obstructions and lose control of their vehicle. The offense is ing training coordinator considered a first degree mis-• Promoted Jody Glasser demeanor and carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine. • Farming - Property highway right of way begins in relation to a farm field. It's easy to unknowingly creep over the line when working fields, which can lead to maintenance issues for highway personnel. Consult the local ODOT garage to establish boundaries.

• Drainage - ODOT personnel can provide guidance on the proper placement and size of pipe along farm fields, lawns and under driveways. A permit is required before this type of work can take place. • Signage – It is illegal to place anything within highway right of way without permission of ODOT. Signs placed within highway right of way that obstruct the view of motorists will be removed. As a general rule, anything placed behind utility poles is outside of highway right of way; however, permission from private property owners should be received prior to placing any sign. "We are a resource for property owners at any time. If work is being performed along a state highway or there's any question as to what is permissible, contact ODOT before to be sure the project is not in violation of state requirements," said

Contact information for the local ODOT District 1 garages is as follows. District 1 includes the counties of Allen, Defiance, Hancock, Hardin, Paulding, Putnam, Van Wert and Wyandot:

SOUTH MAIN STREET IN 1930

By: Stan Jordan

You are standing in front of the Oasis and looking south on Main Street in 1930 when this picture was taken. You can see on the left where George Busby's Barbershop was. It was operated for years by his son, Harry. The H&H Cleaners building is not there as it was built about 1950. The next building on the left was built in 1900 for a restaurant. It has the name Delmonicos on it. I think it served as a store, barbershop, and a pool room. As far as I can remember it was Tiny's Lunch. Operated by C.Z. Delong for many years, it

FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF A NEW YOGI

The Nurturing Well by: Jill

For many people, yoga is an intimidating practice for a variety of reasons. Some people believe they are too inflexible to try yoga. Others believe that yoga simply involves weird stretching techniques. Others feel that yoga is too slow-paced to be real exercise. But perhaps for many, the mere language and poses in yoga present the most intimidating aspects.

Who can blame them? Trying to transform into various animals can be intimidating to the most daring person. Poses include downward & upward dog, cat, dolphin, crane, frog, cobra, cow, and camel, to name a few. And as if animal transformations weren't difficult enough, instructors expect you to mimic a child, a tree, a mountain, a warrior, a bridge, and even a corpse! They also do moon poses. You get mooned in yoga!

On top of intimidating poses, yoga instructors use foreign terms that lead to confusion for a new yogi. Yogi?! A few of the terms include the

• Namaste (nom*uh*stay) You hear: "No more iced tea." Great. Now I'm thirsty for iced

• Ashtanga (ash*tong*uh) You hear: "I stung ya." What? Who stung whom?! • Asana (ahs*ah*nah) You hear: "A sauna." I know it's hot in here, but this is nothing like a sauna! Chatauranga (chaht*tour*ang*ah) hear: "Chat around va." Huh? Nobody's talking. All I hear is breathing.

Pranayama (pruh*non*uh*muh) You hear: "Pray no more." Are you crazy? You put me in this pose and expect me not to pray?!

With all joking aside, yoga actually has a host of valuable traits. It can be a great form of exercise, meditation, or spiritual wellbeing. It builds strength, increases flexibility, reduces stress, develops better breathing control, lowers blood pressure, and improves posture. In my personal experience with yoga, I've enjoyed better sleep patterns, fewer body aches, and a sense of peace after a good yoga session. Everyone should give it a fair trial to enjoy these ben-

You never know. You may enjoy transforming into a dolphin, a cat, or a mountain. Personally, I like to make like a tree, a triangle, or a child. And I make sure I'm not thirsty for tea when I go. Namaste! (A polite gesture consisting of a bow that suggests peace and goodwill.)

Special appreciation goes to Mrs. B for the gracious care and guidance she extended to these children in preparation. Not to mention the juice and homemade cupcakes adorned with candy crosses she made for treats after the ceremony. For Mrs. B, it was especially worth it when a child came up to her the next day and exclaimed that he felt like a whole different person. RAIDER CHEERLEADERS PREPARE FOR COMPETI-TIONS

The Wayne Trace Competition Cheerleading Squad has had a very successful season thus far. They earned hardware at every competition they went to this fall. This talented squad is gearing up for an action packed end to their season over the next few months. The Raider group has five, and maybe six more competitions scheduled between January and March. They all hold opportunities to get better in the aspects of competition cheer, but the squad is really shooting for the National Championship with AmeriCheer. This competition will take place late in March in Orlando, Florida at Disney. The squad is busy perfecting their routine and getting funds raised to attempt this dream.

For those that have never attended a cheerleading competition, there is much more to being good than shaking poms, smiling, and yelling. Every single move has to be choreographed precisely. Every movement is done in a prescribed way and exactly at the same time as the other members. This nine member squad is putting in extra hours to rise to the challenge. While they are preparing the routine, they are also working to pay their way. They have held junior high dances, mini cheerleading camps, and other things to support their competitions.

LADY ARCHERS OVERPOWER PANTHERS

Paulding's Faith Vogel and Rachel Williamson faceoff in the opening play of the opening game of the 2014-15 girls basketball season. More pictures at westbendnews.net

The Lady Panthers began their season against Antwerp on Tuesday, December 2nd at the Archer home court. The game was an interesting mix of play for a conclusion benefiting the Antwerp team.

The game started with Antwerp's Rachel Williamson getting the ball for the team in the jump shot. The first few minutes were not friendly to the home team at all.

No matter how many times they shot, they just could not get the ball in, luckily Antwerp did not have a problem rebounding the ball, shot after shot.

When Paulding was able to retrieve the ball, their chances of getting the ball in the basket, the first quarter anyway, were much great than their local rival.

The Lady Panthers may have easily had the first portion on the first quarter but it wasn't long before Antwerp got it back under control. By halftime Paulding was only ahead 17-15.

The second half was Antwerp's comeback periods with Audrie Longardner and Peyton Short leading the point list for their team. Paulding's Senior Brooke Combs had the top score of all the players.

Before the end of the game, with about 40 seconds left, Peyton Short was hit hard and was injured. It appears she was doing better a few days later. No one likes to see these young people incur

Coach Taylor commented, "I give credit to the girls for buying into what it takesstrong defense, limiting turnovers, and making free throws (22-34). We now need to focus on winning the rebounding game and shooting a better FG%."

BLAZERS KNOCK DOWN WARRIORS IN HS BASKET-BALL

By: Jeff Abbott

Eastside forced turnovers on the Woodlan offense in the final stanza to break open a close game and post a 44-36 win over the Warriors. The game was tied at 8 at the end of the first period and Woodlan led by three, 20-17 at halftime. The Blazers had a 3 point advantage the end of the third quarter. Eastside used pressure on the ball at midcourt to force Woodlan turnovers that led to an 8-0 Blazer run to build a lead that the Warriors couldn't overcome. Rain Hinton had 17 points for the Warriors.

Alex Arellano scores for Paulding in the second quarter that stole the game from Antwerp. More pictures at westbendnews.net

The night before the Paulding team traveled to Antwerp to scout the competition for the next game they would be playing at the Archer court. Would it be close?

The game began Saturday, December 6 and the Archers were giving the Panthers a run for their money, going into overdrive and scoring 22 points in the first quarter alone. Paulding was getting worried.

Paulding quickly realized Sam Williamson had to be shutdown. Overall Williamson posted 30 points, topping the scoring list.

The second quarter Antwerp only put four points on the new scoreboard while Paulding added 24 for their best quarter. In fact, this was the difference in the game -

Dear Miss C,

I just realized I am mad at my sister. I used to think that I was just heart hurt by feeling that I am not the priority in her life that I want to be. I used to think it just hurt my feelings when she backed out of things at the last minute or had a last minute drama that made plans change. I used to think that I felt disappointed that spending time together or being there for one another (outside of a life or death situation) is never as important to her as it is to me. And just recently, I realized that I have been bottling up this emotion because I felt it was maybe more important to make things as peaceful and easy for everyone. So, now I am mad at her. I know there is probably nothing that I can do, because there have been many conversations about the situations that led to my feelings. So, I am at the point where I have figure out a way to just not be mad. I don't know how to do this. Do you have any advice for me?

–One Mad Sister Dear One Mad Sister,

In most of my research, the answer to your question relates to "setting boundaries" or "acceptance of things you cannot change", and "turn the other cheek." And there are definitely times when you should do all of these things. But sometimes that seems to minimize the feelings of hurt and betrayal you experience. We often (especially with those we love) assume that we share the same values, beliefs and priorities in our lives, but we just simply don't. Then we deal with the potential second injury (perhaps even more hurtful) when the other person doesn't seem to care about the let downs the same way you do. We are left feeling hurt, persecuted, sad, or even angry. So, I am going to give you three pieces of advice:

1. OPEN THE LINES OF COMMUNICATION: You need to know if the 'let down' is a result of miscommunication or is it a willful neglect? Open the discussion in a non-confrontational way, allowing your loved one to tell their side of the story. Then...

2. REVIEW YOUR INing contemporary 90 minute set of Christmas music as originally performed by the nationally acclaimed group, Trans-Siberian Orchestra.

The music format of traditional Christmas music and other classical pieces with electronic keyboards, drums, and guitars is enjoyed by all age groups. Siberian Solstice has seven members on stage to accurately reproduce the TSO style and will be performing live for the Payne community and the surrounding area.

VESTMENT IN THE RELA-TIONSHIP: Is this the first time you have felt this way?

Because if it happens again and again, you do need to draw a line. And since it is a loved one that you see regularly, be sure to draw an even line. Which means you keep your distance in the circumstances you know you will be

RAIDER GRAPPLERS HAVE HIGH EXPECTATIONS

Wayne Trace Wrestling is entering this season with some lofty goals. George Clemens has his eye set on the one goal that has eluded him and his teams over the last eight seasons, the GMC title. Clemens will see this year's team return 10 letter winner from last year's squad and will be comprised of 8 seniors. In addition to the senior laden team, it will have six returning district qualifiers and boast two returning state qualifiers.

ouple the at ence with a solid incoming freshman class of Dylan Jackson, Colten Hower, Braxton Asher, Quinton Staler, Marcus Rassman, and Hunter Showalter. Clemens believes this freshman class will contribute all season long. He will also lean on sophomores: Anthony Baxter, Caleb Schultz, Brandon Laney, Ryan James, Ruger Goeltzenleuchter, and the only junior on the team, George Clemens IV.

Senior leadership and experience will be an asset this year and provided by: Matt Baxter, Carl Elliott, Zaine Cotterman, Tyler Showalter, Jacob Dingus, Josh Reel, and Justin Pierce. Of these, four were district qualifiers last season in Pierce, Dingus, Showalter, and Baxter and Cotterman was a district alternate. Coach Clemens is looking for big things from his senior wrestlers.

"I think if everyone can stay healthy and continue to work hard, then this should be a very exciting season. We will have a solid line up from top to bottom. We will feature some of the premier wrestlers in the area at some weights, and will have quality and competitive wrestlers in the remainder of the line up. A solid freshman group mixed in with six returning district qualifiers, three district placers, and two returning state qualifiers could make this one of the best teams we have put together at Wayne Trace," stated Clemens.

Marcus Rassman Fr (113) will look to make an impact his freshman season after coming off of a great Jr. High campaign and being a GMC champion at that level. (120) is a two time returning state qualifier, two time sectional champ and will be one of the premiere wrestlers of the area. He is currently

HOLIDAY CONCERT TO FEATURE DEBBIE LYNN BRYSON & OLGA KIPP ON DECEMBER 13

The Rockford Belle, of 135 Market Street, Rockford, Ohio has planned a holiday concert featuring professional singer and song writer Debbie Lynn Bryson, of Greenville, OH and Christian singer Olga Kipp, of Defiance, OH. Each performer will bless the stage with their rich powerful voice on December 13, 2014 at 7:00 p.m., doors open at 6:00 p.m.

Brilliantly gifted, Debbie Lynn brings an in depth musical background that includes five album releases; her familiar voice through song has been heard at The Rockford Belle, churches back home, radio stations, and at fairs where she has followed her heart; with God's blessings she strives to touch and help people feel the power of God's love by singing original songs as well as old time gospel favorites.

Her professional accomplishments include singing at the National Quartet Convention in Louisville Kentucky, with professional Gospel artists such as: LuLu Roman former female actress on the television show Hee-Haw, the late singing artist Johnny Cash's sister Jo Ann Cash, Naomi and the Siego's, and the famous piano player Lorne Matthews, who originally played with the Cathedral Quartet when they were playing with Rex Humbard at the Cathedral of Tomorrow, in Akron Ohio.

Originally from the Convoy area, Olga Kipp began singing for the Lord in the little church she attended after being saved at a revival there in December of 1980. She is still singing and ministering with God's Word, testifying of his love and mercy even when times are tough. It is the assurance of eternal life with Christ that gives Olga the desire to use her voice to minister to hurting hearts and to those seeking to find peace through Jesus Christ in a chaotic world.

Olga has sung at the Belle in the past as well as in churches, nursing homes, gospel sings, and WTLW Channel 44's telethon. She also recently sang at Trinity Friends Gospel Expo in Van Wert where she attended for 20 years and was part of their worship team and helped lead praise and worship. Living in Defiance since 2003, Olga enjoys being involved with the worship team at Family Christian Center and loves any opportunity to use her voice, and message, to touch others for Christ.

From Southern Gospel to Contemporary Christian to Classic Hymns and songs, Olga loves to share the message of Christ's love, redemption, and promise of glory. Her business card has Psalm 59:16 "But I will sing of your strength... I will sing of your love...", and that is what she does. The rest of that verse is "you are my fortress, my refuge in times of trouble." Jesus Christ is that fortress that has been there for her in the good times and in times of trouble and her hope is to help others find that same refuge.

Plan now to attend a vivacious and heartwarming evening of beautiful music on December 13 when Debbie Lynn Bryson and Olga Kipp appear at The Belle. For more information contact Tom Rogers at 567-644-9993.

SECRETARY HUSTED AN-NOUNCES DECEMBER OHIO BUSINESS PROFILES

With the holiday season upon us, Ohio Secretary of State Jon Husted announced that December's Ohio Business Profile features six companies owned and operated by skilled individuals who have used their handmade talents as the foundation for establishing successful business ventures in the Buckeye State.

"Each of the companies profiled this month demonstrate the ingenuity and ability of so many local entrepreneurs in Ohio who use their skills to create crafts and goods we can all be proud to give or receive as gifts this holiday season," Secretary Husted said. "I encourage all Ohioans to shop local this year because in addition to getting quality products, it bolsters local economies."

Companies profiled this month include:

- Sirius Alpacas Chagrin Falls Former alpaca farmers who work with Ohio fleece producers to sell their yarns for socks, scarves, blankets, and a variety of other products.
- Buck & Libby Cincinnati Started by a local illustrator and designer, the company creates hand-drawn illustrations for a line of charming products that are sure to brighten your home and your day.
- Elida Candle Company Elida – Producing hand-crafted soy candles, fragrance cubes and room sprays, the business has grown from originally only making eight scents in 2011 to more than 120 today.

Each month, a handful of diverse businesses linked together by a common theme are featured on the Secretary of State's website at OhioBusinessProfile.com, where Ohioans are encouraged to go to submit companies they feel are deserving of recognition in future months.

Secretary Husted's office also releases a monthly report of new business filings in Ohio. Recent data has shown that the number of newly-registered businesses in Ohio is up for the year as compared to the same timeframe last year.

organiza-Community tions, faith-based groups and businesses are being asked to partner together to encourage mentorship in Ohio's schools and help give more students access to role models who can help motivate and inspire them.

The Ohio Department of Education began accepting applications for the state's new $10 million Community Connectors mentoring program. Applications will be accepted through February 20, 2015.

Community Connectors is one of the key education initiatives announced by Ohio Governor John R. Kasich at his 2014 State of the State address to support Ohio's schools by fostering increased student mentorship.

"There is little doubt that an adult's presence in a child's education brings greater success in the classroom," said Dr. Richard A. Ross, superintendent of public instruction. "Our boys and girls need an adult, a mentor they can trust, someone who shows them compassion, who builds their self-esteem and can keep them believing that the sky is the limit."

Nonprofit organizations from the faith-based and civic communities are eligible to lead a project. They must team up with a business and an eligible public school district (or school within an eligible district) to establish a mentorship program.

Eligible school districts are those with a high percentage of students in poverty and a high number of students not graduating on time. All students within that district, regardless of socioeconomic status, will be eligible to participate in the program. Grant initiatives are to focus on the following:

- Setting Goals to be Prepared for 21st Century Ca-
- Building Character;
- Developing Pathways to Achievement: • Building Resiliency;
- Believing in a Positive

OHIO'S DEER-GUN SEASON OPENS WITH MORE THAN 17,500 DEER HARVESTED

Hunters checked 17,512 white-tailed deer on Monday, December 1, the opening day of Ohio's deer-gun hunting season, according to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR).

New for the 2014 deer hunting season, rifles using specified straight-walled cartridges can be used. Gun hunters took advantage of the new opportunity on Monday, checking in 1,805 deer with straight-walled cartridge ri-

Counties reporting the highest numbers of deer checked in on Monday include: Coshocton (793), Tuscarawas (667), Muskingum (652), Ashtabula (586), Knox (573), Guernsey (512), Licking (501), Holmes (477), Harrison (455) and Carroll (451). Last year hunters checked 22,619 deer on the first day of deergun season.

Ohio's deer-gun season remains open through Sunday, December 7. Find more information about deer hunting in the Ohio 2014-2015 Hunting and Trapping Regulations or at wildohio.gov. An updated deer harvest report is posted online each Wednesday.

Hunting is the best and most effective management tool for maintaining Ohio's deer population. During the 2013-2014 hunting season, Ohio hunters checked 191,459 deer. Ohio ranks fifth nationally in resident hunters and 11th in the number of jobs associated with hunting-related industries. Hunting has a more than $853 million economic impact in Ohio through the sale of equipment, fuel, food, lodging and more, according to the National Shooting Sports Foundation's Hunting in America: An Economic Force for Conservation publication. The ODNR Division of Wildlife remains committed to properly managing Ohio's deer populations through a combination of regulatory and programmatic changes. The goal of Ohio's Deer Management Program is to provide a deer population that maximizes recreational opportunities, while minimizing conflicts with landowners and motorists. This ensures that Ohio's deer herd is maintained at a level that is both acceptable to most, and biologically sound.

Until recently, the populations in nearly all of Ohio's counties were above their target numbers. In the last few years, through increased harvests, dramatic strides have been made in many counties to bring those populations closer toward their goal. Once a county's deer population is near goal, harvest regulations are adjusted to maintain the population.

ODNR ensures a balance between wise use and protection of our natural resources for the benefit of all. Visit the ODNR website at ohiodnr.

STATE WILDLIFE OFFICER RETIRES AFTER 25 YEARS OF SERVICE

Wildlife Officer Unit Supervisor Bob Radcliff has retired after 25 years of service to the people of the State of Ohio according to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR), Division of Wildlife. Radcliff started working seasonal positions for the Division of Wildlife in 1984 at Killdeer Plains Wildlife Area. In 1989, Radcliff entered the Wildlife Officer Training Academy. After graduation in 1990, Radcliff served as the Williams County Wildlife Officer until 1992. Radcliff was then promoted to Unit A Supervisor in northwest Ohio, overseeing Williams, Defiance, Henry, Paulding, Putnam, Van Wert, and Allen counties, where he has served until his retirement November 30, 2014.

"Bob did an excellent job protecting Ohio's wildlife resources and serving its citizens throughout the 25 years of his career," said Scott Butterworth, Wildlife District 2 Manager and Radcliff's supervisor. "He has always approached his job with a strong sense of dedication. His knowledge and passion will be missed."

"I have enjoyed my career with the Division of Wildlife, especially the opportunities to contribute to the direction of the Division," said Radcliff. "I have thoroughly enjoyed working with like-minded individuals who are committed to the wildlife resources of the state. I am looking forward to non-law enforcement business opportunities in the future.
