

OPERA LANE PERFORMERS PRESENTS: ANYTHING GOES

The Opera Lane Performers are at it again, this time performing the iconic Anything Goes. The show is set aboard the ocean liner S. S. American, where nightclub singer/evangelist Reno Sweeney (Alex Hindenlang) is en route from New York to England. Her pal Billy Crocker (Gus Stuckey) has stowed away to be near his love, Hope Harcourt (Destiny Lee), but the problem is Hope is engaged to the wealthy Lord Evelyn Oakleigh (Ashton Barnhouse). Joining this love triangle on board the luxury liner are Public Enemy #13, Moonface Martin (Riley Krill) and his sidekick-in-crime Erma (Brooke Ward). With the help of some elaborate disguises, tap-dancing sailors and good old-fashioned blackmail, Reno and Martin join forces to help Billy in his quest to win Hope's heart.

The youth performers (ages 14-25) do not disappoint! This cast is truly the "All Stars" of area theatrics! The voices of Alex, Gus, and Destiny will give you goosebumps. The harmonies of the Angels (Kate Farr, Jaidis Getrost, Trinity McFarland, and Aleyah Mack) and the ensemble will thrill. The an-

PARSON TO PERSON

By: Dr. James Bachman
Dear Parson,
I know I am supposed to study my Bible but I really don't know how to go about it. Where can I get some help?

Philip asked the Ethiopian who was reading Isaiah if he understood what he was reading. The Ethiopian replied, "How can I, except some man should guide me?" See Acts 8:28-31.

Some things we learn on our own, but most things we learn from others who have been taught. The Bible is made up of words. Knowing the meaning of those words in the original language and in their context is essential to a clear understanding of Scripture. We can't just attach any meaning we desire. 2 Peter 1:20 - Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation.

Carefully choose books and teachers who are faithful and will accurately help you divide and interpret God's Word. 2 Timothy 2:2 - And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also. 2 Timothy 2:15 - Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. 2 Peter 3:16 - As also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; in which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction.

GETTING TO KNOW JESUS

By: Oakwood church of Christ

Arrest and Trials
Jesus had spent the evening with the apostles, first in the upper room where they ate the Passover meal, then in the Garden of Gethsemane. In the lesson on "The Praying Christ" we read about his prayers on that night.

During the last supper Jesus had made it known to Judas that he knew he was going to betray him. Judas was one of the twelve, but he was a thief (John 12:6).

His lust for money caused him to go to the Lord's enemies and offer to bring them to Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. During the night of his arrest Jesus was brought for hearings (trials) before the following: Annas (ex-high priest), Caiphas (high priest) and his council, Pilate, Herod, and back to Pilate.

The Betrayer's Bargain Read Matthew 26:14-16.

1. Judas arranged the betrayal with: a) Governor Pilate; b) priests; c) Herod.

2. He agreed to betray Jesus for: a) a pound of gold; b) thirty pieces of silver; c) free.

Peter Would Deny Him Read Matthew 26:31-35.

3. Jesus said the apostles would be offended because of him: a) in years to come; b) except for Peter; c) that night.

He referred to himself as the Shepherd who would be smitten (struck), saying that the sheep of the flock: a) would help him; b) would be scattered; c) would be killed.

Which one of the apostles said he would never be offended because of Christ? a) John; b) Peter; c) Judas.

But Jesus said that before the cock (rooster) crows, Peter would deny him: a) two times; b) three times; c) four times.

Peter said that before he would deny Christ he would: a) hide in shame; b) die with him; c) run away.

Betrayed with a Kiss Read Matthew 26:47-56

Jesus went to the garden of Gethsemane to pray. Three times he prayed that if it could be possible, he wanted to be delivered from what was coming. But he always said, "Not my will, but thine be done" (Matthew 26:36-46). It was at the end of these prayers that Judas came.

The sign Judas used to identify Jesus was: a) a kiss; b) a wave; c) a nod.

One of the disciples drew his sword and cut off the ear of: a) a servant of the high priest; b) Andrew; c) a soldier.

ANSWERS: 1.A; 2. B; 3. C; 4. B; 5. B; 6. B; 7. B; 8. A; 9. A

THE ARK OF SAFETY

By: Doris Applegate

Can you imagine the time, love and patience it took to cut down bulrushes, glue them together one on top of the other with slime and pitch just to make a tiny basket (ark) for her precious baby? This is what Jochebed did for her baby boy who was going to drown if she hadn't protected him. Read Exodus chapter 2 for this true event.

Because God's people were increasing so rapidly, the Pharaoh feared Egypt would diminish and so ordered the baby boys killed. Jochebed, determined to save her son, had Miriam, his sister, stand watch when she placed him in the small basket among the flags in the river. What courage it took since she knew the dangers there. Her trust had to be in God, believing He would protect him. When the Pharaoh's daughter saw and opened the basket she had compassion on the baby when she heard him cry and took him as her own. This is when Miriam asked if she could get a nurse-maid for the child and because this idea pleased the Pharaoh's daughter she agreed and even paid money to care for him.

Usually children would not be weaned until three years of age so this was a great "deal". God had all of these events arranged because of His great plan to deliver His children out of years of pain and bondage in Egypt. The world is a "type" of Egypt and when we come to Jesus Christ, repent of sin and give our lives to Him, we have "come out" of the world and found a new way of living. Jesus is our "ark" of safety and we find protection from bondages of the world and sin. We must keep listening, learning and obeying the word of God in order to stay "safe".

Many dangers plague our soul, from without and within, but we overcome when we "rest" in our ark. The day will come when all of our cares, worries, heartaches, etc. will be gone forever and we will be with Jesus, Father God, and loved ones above all and everything we endured on earth. This world is not our home, we are just "passing through".
Amen

HEAD LICE RESOLUTIONS: HOW TO PROTECT YOUR CHILD

(NAPSI)—When the dreaded lice letter comes home, you'll want an effective product—NOW.

For a long time, the only options to treat head lice were home remedies or pesticide-based retail products (using permethrin or pyrethrins). But are home remedies the only effective option for lice treatments when you're concerned about pesticide (or chemical) exposure?

The Problem
According to a study in the Journal of Medical Entomology, lice have become overwhelmingly resistant to the pesticides (a race of "super lice" has evolved) in traditional over-the-counter treatments. So products containing these ingredients are no longer consistently effective. This often comes as a surprise to parents who buy these products believing they're most toxic to lice.

Contrarily, many parents choose home remedies because they fear the chemicals found in traditional commercial lice treatments are harmful or too aggressive. Although home remedies are readily available and inexpensive, many are not easy to apply and most fail to kill lice or eggs. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has no clear scientific evidence that suffocating head lice with mayonnaise, margarine, butter, herbal oils, olive oil or similar substances is an effective form of treatment.

Then there's combing. It can be a highly effective way of removing lice and eggs to eliminate an infestation. It's not a technique with which most parents have experience, however, and it requires diligence and patience to ensure no lice or eggs are missed that would perpetuate the infestation. Some products that claim to eliminate super lice and eggs are only acting as a conditioner for the hair to make combing easier.

An Answer
Fortunately, there are now affordable pesticide-free head lice treatment options (pediculicides) available over the counter that can deliver better efficacy and convenience than both home remedies and pesticide-based products. However, not all products claiming to kill super lice and eggs work the same way. To get rid of lice, you need to focus on two important aspects:

- Kill the lice that are living
- Kill the lice eggs waiting to hatch.

A new generation of pesticide-free products has been designed to kill the lice and eggs while still in the hair so that less emphasis is put on combing perfectly. One such is Vamousse Lice Treatment.

SCRIPTURE OF THE WEEK

"But what about you?" he asked. "Who do you say I am?"
Simon Peter answered, "You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God."

—Matthew 16:15-16

It was developed by entomologists (bug experts) to kill lice and eggs with a sodium chloride solution that attacks the entire infestation cycle while the lice and eggs are in the hair with one application. The convenient, clinging mousse makes application—even on squirming children—easier, so you can better target the scalp and roots where lice and nits live. Attacking the full life cycle of adults and eggs means a second treatment for hatching lice is not required.

There are more options than ever before for treating head lice. If you're concerned about the chemicals in traditional treatments, consider the technology of pesticide-free products such as Vamousse Lice Treatment. There's no longer a need to compromise between safe ingredients and efficacy when selecting a lice-killing product. You can get confidence and convenience beyond what an unproven home remedy alone delivers and assurance beyond combing alone. Resolve this year to opt for a pesticide-free formula that kills lice and eggs on contact even before you start combing.

DON'T CHASE LAST YEAR'S MUTUAL FUND CATEGORY WINNERS

Bryan Post, Edward Jones Financial Advisor

Emerging Markets, Foreign Large Cap Blend and more – the list is extensive, and for many people, confusing.

However, with a little study, you can understand why these funds have their names – for example, a Small Cap Growth fund will contain stocks of smaller companies thought to offer growth potential. Once you know the goals of different categories of mutual funds, you can determine which ones fit into your overall investment strategy.

This is important, because you want to ensure your portfolio is appropriately diversified. For example, if you find that almost all of your mutual funds come from the above-mentioned Small Cap Growth category, you may be taking on more investment risk than you'd like, because funds that offer the greatest growth possibilities also usually carry the highest degree of market volatility. Typically, you may be better off owning an array of mutual funds drawn from several different categories, with the percentage each category occupies in your portfolio based on your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon. (Keep in mind, though, that while diversification can help reduce the effects of volatility, it doesn't guarantee a profit or protect against losses in a declining market.)

You might be tempted to choose categories by looking at which most recently outperformed the others, and just stick with those groups. But is this a good idea?

It probably isn't – and the main reason you shouldn't chase performance this way is things change very quickly in the mutual funds arena. It's quite possible – and has happened many times – that the top category last year can fall into one of the worst-performing ones this year, and vice versa. Consequently, your efforts to capture a winning trend may be futile.

Of course, within the context of investing in various mutual fund categories, you still need to choose individual funds. And, as is the case with categories, you might be tempted to give considerable weight to a fund's track record. But, similar to the situation with fund categories, "chasing performance" is typically not a good strategy – after all, last year's "hot" fund may have cooled off considerably this year. Nonetheless, reviewing a fund's longer-term track record can help you understand how it might perform through the ups and downs of the financial markets. Always keep in mind, though, that past performance can't guarantee how the fund will perform in the future.

Mutual funds are popular investments – and for good reason. Since each fund generally contains dozens of securities, you get a degree of diversification you can't achieve from owning individual stocks or bonds. And, as discussed above, you can diversify further by owning funds from several categories. Just remember, though, that as you build your mutual fund portfolio, don't get caught up in last year's results – because old news just may not be that relevant today.

Mutual fund investing involves risk. Your principal and investment return in a mutual fund will fluctuate in value. Your investment, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than the original cost.

PAULDING COUNTY RETIRED TEACHERS ANNUAL HALL OF FAME LUNCHEON

Kelly Snyder, pictured right, and her eighth grade American History teacher, Phillip Hotmire were recently inducted into the Paulding County Hall of Fame.

The Paulding County Retired Teachers Association met at the Paulding County Historical Society Museum on July 8 for their annual Hall of Fame Luncheon. To be inducted into the Paulding County Hall of Fame a retired teacher must have had 25 or more years of service to the students of Paulding County. Their names are added to a plaque that hangs in the Paulding County Historical Society Museum. This year six retired teachers were inducted. Phillip Hotmire and Kelly Snyder were present at the meeting. Hotmire retired in 1999, but his name was inadvertently missed from the list of those inducted that year. Snyder retired in 2019. Hotmire was Snyder's eighth grade American History teacher. Others inducted, but not present, were Karen Jacobs, Mark Rhodes, Jon Short, and Jayne Smiley.

The group celebrated their 50th anniversary which actually occurred in October 2018. Pam Young and Karen Walker planned the luncheon and door prizes around the golden anniversary theme.

The Paulding County Retired Teachers Association was initiated on October 31, 1968. The first luncheon was held on November 13, 1968. In 1971 the first officers were elected. They were President, Wanda Jenkins; Vice President, Norma Simon; Secretary, Neola Gordon Treasurer, Clara Gorrell.

Joe Fisher, PT/CLT, a graduate of Paulding High School and Director of Rehab at the Paulding County Hospital, spoke to the group about various programs in the rehab department at the hospital.

ONE OF MY ERRORS

By: Stan Jordan
 I received a phone call the other day from Mr. Smith over in New Haven and he said that Antwerp did have a football team in the 1920's and 1930's, he is right. I had those lines backwards. Actually, Antwerp had football and baseball in the 1920's and 30's and then basketball started in 1937, that's when we got a gymnasium. In 1938, Antwerp High School was the only football team in the state of Ohio that went unscored upon all season. There were 10 seniors on that team and they all graduated in 1939. So we did not have a good football team for a couple of years, so about 1943 or so Antwerp dropped eleven man football for a number of reasons. Then after the school board purchased those acres southeast of town they made a fine football field and track and all and a really fine complex. So, in about 1968 Antwerp started to play football and joined the GMC called the Green Meadow Conference, a fine group of schools. I thank you Mr. Smith for straightening me out, and the other news. THE SNOWY OWL

By: Stan Jordan
 I haven't received any reports lately on the snowy owl. The last I did get was a possible snowy owl nest over south of Payne and Woodburn. I got a report or two from Gar Creek on south of the Monroeville area, but nothing lately. Actually my last report was the sighting of the snowy owl between Paulding and Antwerp - and a couple of them. All I can find on the snowy owl is that it is native to Canada or the circumpolar arctic. Most people believe they come south and winter here and some of them stay the year round. The book says the female is 20% larger than the male and the male is nearly all white, except for the dots on his chest. Their main diet is lemmings and they need about 14 of them of a day. A lemming is about a second cousin to a mouse. We don't have them around here much but they do find mice and moles and other little rodents. If you see a snowy owl in the area in the summer, please let me know. See ya!

NO. 9

A boy was pushing a lawn mower down the sidewalk and he met a man walking and pushing a bicycle. They stopped and talked a moment and the man said he was the pastor down at the local church and he would trade his bicycle for the mower if it runs right. The boy said, "Oh yes, it runs good, let me try your bicycle a bit and maybe we will trade." After a few minutes, the man had pulled on the starter rope a few times and he was getting tired and wore out. He said, "Yes we will trade, but this darn motor won't start. I've pulled till I'm tired."

The boy said, "Yes, you have to pull and say a few bad words." The minister said, "I have forgotten those words a long time ago." The boy said, "If you pull that rope a few more times, those words will come back to you."

Ben Franklin told me one time about the use of the word "FORE" around the golf course. The old timers would tee off and drive about 190 yards or so down the fairway.

There was an enterprising young Jewish boy who would stand on the side and when the golfer would make his second stroke the little boy would run out and look at the divot his club left and the boy would pick up all the fish worms left in the whole and sometimes people would ask "How many?" and usually it was four, but over the years it was changed to fore. This boy grew up and founded The Chubs Bait Co.

MY THINKING ON MLB

By: Stan Jordan
 I think that the MLB, Major League Baseball, should come up to this electronic world. I mean I think that they should come with a way to call balls and strikes electronically. Now, I don't mean to get rid of the ump at the plate because you need him for a hit batman and if a batter steps out of the box and other errors.

The electrical engineers have done wonders in the last few decades and I'm sure they can and have been working on this. Now, I'm not knocking the umpires/callers, as a whole they do good work, but some weeks back a player got thrown out because he argued the ball was outside and they showed it over and over and he was right, it was way outside. I know that happens often, some ump allow the ball to be a couple of inches off of the block, well the batter says that's a ball but some ump are too liberal.

I think the electronic people can get a call of the height of the ball and another electronic ray can get the position on the ball on the plate. This would be in a split second and by a wireless to the ump and he make the call. That would not be any longer for the call than some ump are now.

I'm not against the ump, the reruns show that they do a very good job on some very close calls, but lots of times he ump make a bad call of the balls and strikes and by then it's too late. Yes, sometimes a good recall of a bad call would make a big difference in the game outcome.

All in all the ump do a good job, but I think it is time to go electronically on balls and strikes. As it is now, the batter cannot say a word or he is gone. See ya!

ME AND THE FOURTH OF JULY

PLEASE LOOK THIS OVER

By: Stan Jordan
 This photo was given to me by Kenny Reinhart and I figure it was taken on Antwerp Days or a Fireman's Day, because of the parade, probably in the mid 1990's. Look the picture over and you might see yourself or some of your friends. The spectators run all the way from 2 years and older. Yes that was one of our good times. The firemen really enjoyed those parades and all that went along. The whole town helped to make that a good parade. You can see part of the Ice Cream Depot and that was a busy place in those years, and you probably had an ice cream cone there. I'm glad to see this picture of the crowd, as I always had other chores to do and didn't get down to this part of town. This might be the parade that I saw my old school chum Helen Greene. See ya!

so I ran up to see if The Root Beer Stand was open, but it wasn't, so I drove down 424 toward the Vagabond. I never met a car till I got to US 127. Just a nice morning ride. I met four of my friends there and we had lunch and done a lot of talking,

I drove around the river and took CR 192 for a ways. I saw a sign at the Bethel Methodist Church that their homemade ice cream social was on July 20th from 5 - 7 p.m. I saw some soy bean fields that were nice and green, but about two months late.

I saw some corn fields that should be chest high by now but were only about knee high to a first grader, but even at that, at least the corn was in and up.

In this area there is field after field that was too wet for too long to be planted. I am an old geezer, but I don't remember a spring like this one. I did see where some farmers had combined the wheat. I don't know about the weight and yield, but with all the rain, it must be down a little.

Every farmer that I know has some fields that didn't get planted and are scratching their head a little.

The farmers had all their top soil taken off by a flood, like I said, it sure has been a different type of year.

But then I don't think we had a loss from storms and wind. See ya!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Congress takes a vote to denounce the racist statements from Trump. 4 Republicans supported it. Ours did not! Why wouldn't Bob Latta vote to support this rebuke of racist statements towards members of our own congress? I call him out, I want Bob Latta to state he is appalled by the statements of Trump! Why is he scared? He's in a gerrymandered, bullet-proof district! He has lots of campaign money, is he afraid of Trump's threat to primary any resisters to his sick plans? Does the dismantling of our government and tax cuts to his campaign contributors mean more to him than treating people of all colors with dignity and respect? Bob Latta claims to be a Christian, is this what they taught him in his church? Maybe Bob Latta is a decent person, but when you back a racist, it makes you a racist supporter! When you back a child rapist, you support this also! When you back a liar, this means you are a liar, too! Jesus said "you reap what you sow!" Finally, since we got crickets from Bob Latta on the concentration camps on our southern borders! I will no longer call Bob Latta a mis-representative, because he knows exactly who he represents...himself! Bob Latta is not a representative of anything but money and trashing our great nation through the White House squatter Trump! Bob Latta does not represent the American dream, only big business, and and white nationalists like Trump! C'mon Bob tell us what you think of Trump and his racist statements? Why haven't you made a statement against the sickening treatment of immigrants locked in cages, children sick and mis-treated? Did you leave your Christian compassion in the church vestibule Sunday morning? Time to state your positions on these issues! Or do you only denounce the democratic party every chance you get? These are not democratic-republican issues, they are American issues! Bob Latta...what do you say? Your district needs to know, and they have the right to know if they have a "compassionate conservative, or a racist-bigot supporter"!

DESK VIEW

By: Katie Oberlin

Undeniably, every year has 52 weeks. Every year, one week of those 52 is my favorite, the one I look forward to most, and the period of time when I find my highest concentration of enjoyment. It is not a true week, as it only lasts five days, and the dates are always July 9 through July 13. Perhaps predictably, these five days belong to a summer camp, the one I have been anticipating since it ended last year: 4-H Camp.

I have attended 4-H Camp since my first possible year when I was age nine, and I continued as a camper as long as I could, which was last year. As I continued to go to Camp Palmer annually, I continued to gain more skills, experiences, and memories. I have come to realize that it is impossible to be around the exact same people, do the same activities, and get the same takeaways each year of attendance. Perception changes with perspective, time, and growth, and each year truly leaves its own impression.

Although my time as a camper had ended, I stayed involved with camp in a new way. My counselors were always very impactful to my time as a camper, and it was now my turn to take on that role. Beginning in the wintertime with an application and an interview, I became part of the group that essentially makes this one short week of July really happen. Every month, I got to spend time with people close to and in my age group that all shared the decision to be a camp counselor. These teens were people I had been a camper with and some that were my counselors in the past. This group became one of my favorites to be a part of; everyone there found enjoyment amongst each other, and I know this can be tied back to the common part of everyone's youth, 4-H Camp. The positive experiences of camp leave an impact and every counselor exemplifies that.

As quickly as always, it was July 9 and time to head to Fayette. Once my bags, bug spray, fan, and snacks were moved into my good old cabin, it was time to give up my phone and keys and have one last meeting of reassurance before the campers arrived. This year hit differently because I was more invested than ever before. All of the safety training, decision-making, and planning were over, and it was time to put the plan in action. The experience of the campers was in my hands, and with a "now or never" feeling within me, I embraced the responsibility I had been given.

4-H Camp 2019 brought a new theme, a new group of counselors in training (CITs), some campers who were attending for their first time, and some new sessions such as drones. As always there was dancing, swimming, Gaga ball, sessions such as team building and zipline, skits at the campfire, the counselor hunt, song time, flags and inspiration, and the sweaty July weather. Though I have done all of these activities many times, I consistently have learned from and enjoyed them differently each time. I also got to have some newer experiences this year. For the first time since I was ten, I went outposting, which is a nighttime outing where campers sign up to sleep in a three-sided shelter under the stars with s' mores and their sleeping bags. I also got to be a part of an Atl Atl session where I learned about ancient spear throwing. This year I got to see camp from a new perspective, I experienced it differently, and I found fulfillment in ways I never had previously. Most importantly, I discovered that responsibility can be exhausting, but exhaustion, which rest time exists for, will never outweigh how rewarding it is to do something new and important successfully.

The ending of 4-H Camp is always hard. After spending five days together, there are many new friendships, fresh memories, and strong bonds tied to the time spent. The last night always includes a reflective candle lighting ceremony, a hype, all-inclusive dance, ice cream with a slideshow that recaps the week, and, for those of age, and a fun-filled teen party used to recruit the older campers. After cleaning absolutely everything the next morning typically comes a tearful reprise of the song "Make New Friends." Leaving Camp Palmer is often solemn and difficult but acts as a symbol of why each person cherishes their time there.

Although 4-H Camp may seem to be the same every year, it truly is not. Each year is a new group of people, a new experience, and a new opportunity to learn. My role as a camp counselor helped me understand through action that a person might do the same thing over and over, but there is always a different way to be involved, a different perspective to take, and new ways to discover oneself in the same environment. 4-H Camp is why I pick up those small pieces of trash on the ground, the reason I embrace new groups of people, and where I learned the strength in investment.

CELEBRATING OHIO WILDLIFE: EASTERN SMALL-FOOTED BAT

By: Patrick Troyer, Paulding SWCD

It is once again time to explore a little bit about the diversity of Ohio's amazing wildlife. This week's feature looks at a species whose population levels in recent years have been noted as concerning and which is thought to be the rarest in North America. Members of this species are usually associated with Halloween folklore, so that should help narrow it down. This week we will feature the Eastern Small-Footed Bat and learn everything we want to know about this amazing animal.

According to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR), the Eastern Small-Footed Bat is known as one of the smallest bats in Ohio while also being the rarest bat throughout much of North America. The Pennsylvania Game Commission writes that this bat species is found in the forests of North America with frequent sightings occurring in Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia, and West Virginia.

This bat is identified by its brown fur, black facial mask, small black ears and a small foot, hence the name. Bats have a cartilaginous calcar which is a flap of skin that goes in between the back legs and the tail. ODNR writes the small-footed bat has a keeled calcar which is a small flap of skin that goes beyond the extents of the cartilaginous calcar. Essentially, this is what makes up the wings of the bat.

The mating season for the Eastern Small-Footed Bat begins in the fall. ODNR writes that it is likely understood that female bats undergo what is called delayed fertilization which is a reproductive process that allows them to store the viable male sperm during the winter months with the eggs not being fertilized until spring once they are done with hibernation. Young bats are called pups and there is typically only one pup born to each female bat each spring around May or June. The Pennsylvania Game Commission writes that the Eastern Small-Footed Bat handles cold conditions better than other bat species commonly taking up hibernation below large rocks along the floors of caves along with tight spots in walls or ceilings of caves.

winter months involve the bats undergoing hibernation usually in a tunnel or cave entrance where they can enjoy cool and dry conditions.

Interesting enough, there is a law in the Ohio Revised Code that protects bats and their caves. According to ODNR, Section 1517 of the Revised Code, known as the Cave Protection Act, passed in 1989, ensures that the cave life and material is conserved, along with the bats that are living within the caves. The act recognizes "that species of cave life are unusual and of limited numbers; that many are rare, threatened or endangered species,". How neat!

Have you seen the Eastern Small-Footed Bat out and about? If so, we would love to see your pictures and hear your stories! Stay tuned as we continue to explore the amazing wildlife as part of our Ohio Wildlife Series! Get out there and explore the great outdoors!

HELP FOR FAMILY MEMBERS DEALING WITH DIABETES

My dad was diagnosed with diabetes last year, but it seems he hasn't really embraced what that means. For example, he hasn't made any changes to his eating habits at all. How can I help him better understand his diagnosis and make healthier food choices?

While it might seem that your dad hasn't accepted his new reality of living with diabetes, it might just be that he doesn't know where or how to start in terms of making changes to accommodate his new health situation.

Changing and maintaining a new behavior can be difficult, especially when you've received a new diagnosis of diabetes that might require you to change several behaviors all at once, according to Communication Strategies to Support a Family Member with Diabetes, a new Ohio-line fact sheet.

Ohioline is Ohio State University Extension's free online information resource and can be found at ohioline.osu.edu. OSU Extension is the outreach arm of The Ohio State University College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences.

"Behavior change experts suggest that people go through six stages of change," according to the authors of the fact sheet.

"Our personal motivations 'pull' us through the stages towards adopting a health behavior such as healthy eating or physical activity," the authors write. "Being aware of the six stages can help family members find ways to support or encourage the person with diabetes, motivating them to change towards healthier behaviors."

The six stages of change could be applied to helping a family member living with diabetes in the following ways.

Precontemplation: A person with diabetes has no inclination how to change a behavior related to diabetes management. He or she does not view that there is problem or is unaware of the problem.

Contemplation: A person is aware of a problem with his or her diabetes management and the consequences of not changing or not adopting self-management behaviors, but still is not committed or motivated to change. The person weighs the pros and cons of changing his or her behavior.

Preparation: A person is motivated to change but has not yet started. He or she is making plans, looking into strategies, or setting concrete goals.

Action: A person has started to change and has maintained the behavior for fewer than six months.

Maintenance: A person has maintained the behavior for six months and beyond, and the adopted behavior has become a habit.

Relapse: A person returns to his or her previous behavior of poor diabetes management.

So how can you help? The authors suggest the following:

During the precontemplation stage, you could talk to your dad about why change is important for him now that he has diabetes. You can ask him open-ended questions that begin with "who, what, when, where, why, and how," to help him begin to think about the changes he will need to make.

In the contemplation stage, you can encourage the change that you want your dad to make and be an active listener to his needs and offer encouragement and support.

In the preparation stage, you can help your dad make the changes that need to happen by helping him set Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Realistic, and Timely (SMART) goals.

In the action stage, you can help create opportunities for your dad to be successful in his diabetes management.

In the maintenance stage, you can continue to support your dad's behavior changes and offer him praise for his accomplishments.

If you get to the relapse stage, you can help your dad identify the cause of his relapse and begin his diabetes living plan again, the authors suggest.

"It's important for you to understand that relapses are common, and that doesn't have to mean that your dad can't get back on his healthy living plan," the authors write. "Using non-judgement statements such as 'I understand it's hard to make these changes, what can I do to help,' is one way you can offer your support."

HOUSE FIRE OUTSIDE ANTWERP

The Antwerp Fire Dept. was dispatched to a working house fire at 01943 Co. Rd. 220, at 10:56 a.m. on Friday, July 19, 2019. Upon arrival heavy smoke was showing at the rear of the house. Mutual-Aid was immediately requested from Cecil-Crane Twp. Payne and Hicksville Fire Departments. Within a short period of time, additional fire departments were dispatched for manpower and tankers to not only battle the fire but to deal with the heat and humidity. Eventually, 10 fire departments from Paulding, Defiance Counties and Allen County Indiana, provided manpower and equipment to help battle the fire. Antwerp and Hicksville EMS provided rehab at the scene along with Van Wert County CERT, for the 43 firefighters, from Antwerp, Cecil, Edgerton, Farmer Twp., Hicksville, Northeastern Fire Dist., Paulding, Payne, Sherwood and Woodburn Fire Departments. Paulding Fire Dept.'s Aerial Ladder Truck was brought in to gain access to ventilate the second floor roofs to the house and apply water to hard to reach areas to the house. Hicksville Fire Dept. responded with their rehab bus that they have made available to area fire departments. Antwerp Fire Department cleared the scene around 7:00 p.m. One Paulding firefighter was overcome by the heat and humidity and was taken to Hicksville Community Hospital for observation. The Paulding County Sheriff's Office and EMA provided assistance at the scene along with the Red Cross helping the family with a place to stay for the next few days.

STUDENTS ENJOY SUMMER PROGRAMS

Visitors to our activity booth at the Paulding County Fair enjoying some edible soil they just made.

By: Patrick Troyer, Paulding SWCD

The final bells for summer vacation may have rung way back in May, but for many Paulding County students, the learning has not stopped. Visitors and students at the Paulding County Fair and Ann's Bright Beginnings Preschool enjoyed learning about many great things about the outdoors all summer long. Some topics covered included water quality, composting, wildlife, cover crops, owls, and more!

Here are some of our summertime highlights. Visitors to our activities table at the Paulding County Fair had fun making a cover crop buddy along with edible soil, lake in a bag, and an owl. The Edible Soils activity takes chocolate chops, butterscotch chips, chocolate pudding, Oreo cookies, green food coloring, and gummy worms to learn about what makes up each soil horizon and the life living in the soil. The Cover Crop Critter allowed visitors to learn about the amazing benefits of cover crops and watch their seed grow! They took a cup of soil, seed, and then decorated their cup with eyes and a mouth. Those who took part in the Lake in a Bag activity started out with a bag of clear gel to represent a nice clean lake but notice how quickly the quality of the water in their lake changes once pollutants such as fertilizer, pet waste, car fluids, and more affect the quality of their water and lead to the formation of algal blooms that close beaches and impact drinking water supplies.

Once again, the summer program students at Ann's Bright Beginnings Preschool enjoyed learning about a variety of topics that included owl pellets, vermicomposting, sinkholes, and thunderstorms to name a few. One favorite of the students is learning all about owls and owl pellets! Did you know that owls could produce up to two pellets per day based on the amount of food that they consume? Everyone was amazed to learn this fact and so many other cool ones about our owls! Owl pellets are the non-digestible portions of the owl's meal such as bones and feathers that are collected and formed into pellets. The owls were very hungry as there was many skulls found of various rodents, hipbones, ribs, along with many more!

Composting is also a favorite among the kids as they get to see the amazing things that worms do for the health of our soil. When talking about vermicomposting, it certainly helps to talk a little about the worms themselves. Red worms live in the first few inches of the soil where there is plenty of moisture and organic matter to break down. Worms belong to a group of organisms known as decomposers whose job it is to take dead and decaying organic material, recycle the nutrients from these materials, and allow for a continuous supply of nutrients to sustain an ecosystem with a healthy, fertilized soil.

Worms will eat a variety of materials such as carrots, potatoes, tomatoes, pumpkins, apple cores, banana peels. They like a moist environment because they get the oxygen required for survival by obtaining it from water soaking it up through their skin, but they do not like too much water as it can cause them to drown. Everyone loved getting to see the worms in the compost bin and then taking part in a worm relay that allowed them to use their fine motor skills to use their "bird beaks" to pick up worms and transport them to the bird nest to feed the hungry baby birds.

Do any of these programs or perhaps another sound good to you? Give the Paulding SWCD a call at 419-399-4771.

the United States are parents. A majority of those parents have children under the age of 18. Some groups of "marijuana moms" claim that use makes them better parents.

The results of this new study suggest that marijuana users - who are nearly always (92 percent of the time) also alcohol users - are trying to control their kids more than non-users, Freisthler said.

She said, "We can't tell from this study, but it may be that parents who use marijuana or alcohol don't want their children to spoil the buzz they have, or bother them when they have a hangover."

Freisthler conducted the study with Nancy Jo Kepple of the University of Kansas. Their results were published online this week in the Journal of Social Work Practice in the Addictions.

The researchers interviewed 3,023 randomly selected California parents of children 12 years old or younger by telephone in 2009. They asked participants about their recent use (in the past year) and past use (a year or more ago) of alcohol, marijuana, methamphetamine and other drugs.

They also asked how often the parents used non-violent discipline (such as timeouts or taking away privileges), corporal punishment (such as spanking) and physical abuse (such as hitting a child with a fist).

This is one of the first studies to look at how use of specific types of substances are related to a variety of parental discipline practices in the general population, Freisthler said.

The findings revealed that parents who used marijuana in the past year tended to use more of all types of discipline compared to non-users, even after taking into account a variety of other factors that could impact use of discipline, such as parental stress and depression and child and parent demographics. The same was true of alcohol users.

Parents who had used alcohol or marijuana in the past, but were not at the time of the research interview, also applied most types of discipline more often than did non-users.

And the more substances that parents used, the more often they disciplined their children in all types of ways, according to the study. For example, parents who reported using the most substances practiced physical abuse at a rate about 1.45 times greater than those who used only one substance.

Results showed that the annual frequency of physical abuse was 0.5 times higher among parents who used both alcohol and marijuana in the past year, compared to those who consumed only alcohol.

"The use of several different kinds of substances certainly is a warning sign that parents may be relying more heavily on discipline to control their children," she said.

Freisthler said this study shows that while marijuana use has become more mainstream and is legal in more states, there is still need for caution.

"Marijuana use is not risk-free. It affects a lot of behaviors, including parenting."

The study was supported by a grant from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

MARIJUANA MAY NOT MAKE PARENTS MORE 'CHILL'

Sorry, marijuana moms and dads: Using pot may not make you a more relaxed parent, at least when it comes to how you discipline your children.

A study of California parents found that current marijuana users administered more discipline techniques of all kinds to their children on average than did non-users. That includes everything from timeouts to, in some cases, physical abuse.

"The acceptability of marijuana is growing in the United States and with that, more parents feel free to use the drug, sometimes even in front of their children," said Bridget Freisthler, co-author of the study and professor of social work at The Ohio State University.

"Some parents claim it makes them a better, more relaxed parent, but that may not be the case."

The effect of marijuana use on parenting is a relevant concern: A 2017 survey from Yahoo News and Marist College found that 54 percent of adults who use marijuana in

PROPOSED TUITION & FEES INCREASE FOR IN-STATE FRESHMEN

The Ohio State University will increase tuition and fees for incoming Ohio freshmen by 3.3%, which equates to a $358 change from last year's rate, according to a proposal being presented to the university's Board of Trustees on Wednesday.

The new rate will then be frozen for four years for these students, who are the third class to join the university under the Ohio State Tuition Guarantee. The tuition guarantee provides students with predictability about college costs by locking in-state tuition, mandatory fees, housing and dining for each incoming class of undergraduate students from Ohio.

Ohio State has placed a strategic emphasis on access, affordability and excellence. Since 2015, the university has devoted more than $150 million to increase support for low- and moderate-income Ohioans. Through the end of the coming academic year, an estimated 42,000 Buckeye families will have benefited from three new or expanded financial aid programs:

The Buckeye Opportunity Program; President's Affordability Grants; Land Grant Opportunity Scholarships; Ohio State is also expanding its Carmen Books program, which provides digital textbooks to students at a deeply discounted rate - often 80% less expensive than traditional texts. A year-long pilot that is continuing through autumn semester is expected to save students more than $1 million.

More than 13,000 incoming students - including first-year students at all Ohio State campuses - will also receive iPad learning technology suites this year through the university's Digital Flagship initiative, a collaboration with Apple.

In Columbus, in-state tuition and fees would total $11,084 per year through 2022-23 for incoming first-year students. Including the most common housing and dining plans, the total rate for these students would be $23,792.

At regional campuses, in-state tuition and fees for incoming students would be set at $7,912 for the Lima, Mansfield, Marion and Newark campuses and $7,874 at the Agricultural Technical Institute in Wooster. Most regional campus students do not live on campus.

For Ohio students on the Columbus campus who arrived prior to the guarantee program, in-state tuition and fees total $10,037.

Housing and dining rates would increase by 2.2% for incoming students and remain frozen for those in the Ohio State Tuition Guarantee. The most popular plans on the Columbus campus would cost $12,708, compared with $12,434 for students who entered last year.

Student health insurance, which covers the cost of third-party health coverage, would increase 2%. Most U.S. students utilize private insurance instead of obtaining coverage through the university.
