PAULDING-PUTNAM OPERATION ROUND-UP GRANT

Operation Round Up is a community service program that provides funding for charitable and benevolent purposes for individuals, families and organizations in our community. This program allows Paulding Putnam Electric members the opportunity to make a big impact on many lives for just pennies!

Operation Round Up Board Chair Jane Nice presents a $2,500 check to President Clint Vance of Paulding County Habitat for Humanity. "After discussing this grant with our board; Laurie Lucas, our executive director and I sat down to complete the grant" Vance explains. "A couple weeks later, I received a phone call from Renee Boss stating we have been awarded the full amount. I could not tell her thank you enough" stated Vance. The funds will go toward a Grover Hill home build for an elderly man in need of assistance. "We started a "Bucks for Boards" campaign to raise money to ultimately lower the final mortgage amount for this gentleman. This grant will go directly in helping to do that" noted Vance.

Along with the "Bucks for Boards" campaign; these entities have played a huge role in this home build by either donating materials or time: R&L Truss, Owens Corning, Carter Lumber, Vantage Career Center - Construction and Electrical classes, and the Paulding County Land Bank.

'We are humbled by the outpouring of support from our community with this home build. We look forward to sharing this home with the community at its dedication in the Spring" says Vance.

NSCC ANNOUNCES 2019 NCLEX PASS RATES FOR NURSING PROGRAM GRADUATES

The need for skilled nurses continues to grow nationwide, and Northwest State Community College is leading the way in preparing students to meet the healthcare demands of our communities. The Practical Nursing graduates from 2019 at NSCC earned a 100% pass rate for the National Council Licensure Exam (NCLEX), while the Registered Nursing graduates earned a 92.86% pass

"The faculty and I are pleased to announce the NCLEX results for both the practical nursing and associate degree nursing programs. Our graduates are eligible to take the NCLEX examination and qualify for entry-level nursing positions," noted Dr. Kathy Keister, NSCC Dean of Nursing. "Keys to graduate success include the dedication of our experienced faculty and the strong partnerships with area hospitals and healthcare facilities who provide highly effective clinical experiences," Keister continued. Dr. Keister also noted that within six months of graduation, 100% of NSCC nursing graduates are either working or enrolled in a baccalaureate program.

"Having consistently high passing rates, with multiple times 100% pass on the first try, is a testament to a dedicated group of faculty that ensures high-quality learning environments and student success," said Dr. Michael Thomson, NSCC President. "As Northwest State's premier community institution, local hospitals depend on our medical programs, like nursing, so they can ensure high-quality medical care. We're so proud of our nursing students, and look forward to their success serving our local families," Thomson continued.

Nursing careers are hard work, but are also potentially lucrative, which makes the NSCC education worth the time and effort. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics (www.bls.gov), the mean annual wage from May 2018 for a Registered Nurse is $75,5101, while the mean annual wage for a Licensed Practical Nurse is

$47,0502. Both practical nursing and registered nursing programs are accepting applications at Northwest State's main campus in Archbold. DANCE2U TOUR JAN. 24 USES DANCE TO SPUR DISCUSSION ABOUT MENTAL HEALTH

The Ohio State Dance and BalletMet2 Collaborative DaNCe2U 2019-2020 Tour utilizes dance to ignite discussion about mental health issues when they perform at The Ohio State University at Lima at 12:15 p.m., Fri., Jan. 24, 2020, in the Martha W. Farmer Theatre for the Performing Arts in Reed Hall.

DaNCe2U brings two masterworks in the dance canon to foster discussion about mental health and its stigma - Anna Sokolow's Rooms set to music by Kenyon-Hopkins and George Balanchine's The Four Temperaments set to music by Hindemith. The Four Temperaments refers to the four humors of the ancient Greek philosophy: sanguine, choleric, melancholic and phlegmatic. Rooms' sections "Alone" (isolation), "Panic" (anxiety), "Desire" (unrequited love), "The End" (inner turmoil) and "Daydream" (feelings of longing) all align with aspects of mental health in today's society.

These two works allow us to talk about global issues of mental health in a new light with a different lens into conversation about mental health and what we can do for ourselves and our communities," said Valarie Williams, professor of dance. "The dancers are touring together and learning from different audiences, learning from each other, and become ambassadors for dance as a critical artform to engender discussion about difficult conversations."

The performances will serve as the vehicle for a mental health panel afterwards whose purpose is to facilitate awareness and to reduce the stigma around those who experience mental health challenges. Panelists will include Carmen Cupples, lecturer in social work; Beth Sutton-Ramspeck, associate professor of English; Margie Anich, lecturer in theater; and Samantha Haudenschield, lecturer in psychology and coordinator of Ohio State Lima's Counseling and Consultation Service. According to Williams, the performing and visual arts have a history of collaborative research and creative activity projects that address solutions, treatment, and socialization of mental health, and DaNCe2U#mentalhealth is just one of the many ways the performing arts can align with this topic.

"Dance provides a way for people to contemplate a new way to see and to move and to converse about mental health issues because it provides a new way of thinking about them," Williams said. "We can see in the movement how the ideas of anxiety, daydreaming, suicide, depression, feelings of aloneness or how we relate to society based on our own character are portrayed."

The DaNCe2U #mentalhealth Performance and Panel Tour is a collaboration among the Department of Dance, BalletMet 2 and the University Libraries. The event is free and open to the

What took Mrs. Klein aback was Douglas's picture. Douglas was so forlorn and likely to be found close in her shadow as they went outside for recess. Douglas's drawing was simply this: a hand.

A hand, obviously, but whose hand? The class was captivated by his image. "I think it must be the hand of God that brings us food," said one student.

"A farmer," said another, "because they grow the turkeys."

"It looks more like a policeman, and they protect us." "I think," said Lavinia, who was always so serious, "that it is supposed to be all the hands that help us, but Douglas could only draw one of them.'

Mrs. Klein had almost forgotten Douglas in her pleasure at finding the class so responsive. When she had the others at work on another project, she bent over his desk and asked whose hand it was. Douglas mumbled, "It's yours, Teacher."

Then Mrs. Klein recalled that she had taken Douglas by the hand from time to time; she often did that with the children. But that it should have meant so much to Doug-

Perhaps, she reflected, this was her Thanksgiving, and everybody's Thanksgiving not the material things given unto us, but the small ways that we give something to others.*

From the hand of God comes every good and perfect gift (James 1:17).

"For the LORD is the great

And the great King above all gods. In His hand are the deep places of the earth; The heights of the hills are

The sea is His, for He made

And His hands formed the dry land."

-- Psalm 95:3-5

Our salvation and the gift of eternal life is a gift from the hands of God, for Jesus, God's Son, had nails driven through His hands and His feet onto the cross where He died for your sins and mine. "He Himself bore our sins in His body on the tree, so that we might die to sins and live for righteousness; by His wounds you have been healed" (1 Peter 2:24 NIV).

God will save and give eternal life to those who place their faith and trust in Jesus (Acts 16:30-31), turn from their sins in repentance (Acts 17:30-31), confess Jesus before men (Romans 10:9-10), and are baptized (immersed) into Christ for the forgiveness of sins (Acts 2:38). God will continue to cleanse from sin those who continue to walk in the light of His Word (1 John 1:7-9).

DON'T MISS HEAVEN

By: Doris Applegate

Have you ever wondered why the streets of Heaven are pure gold or why each gate is a pearl or the foundation of the wall around the city has precious stones? These are: Jasper, sapphire, chalcedony, Phone: 419-258-2000 • Email: info@westbendnews.net emerald, sardonyx, sardius, chrysolite, beryl, topaz, chrysoprase, jacinth, and am-FUNDING ethyst.

WOW! What a beautiful place Heaven is. God surely loves gems and beautiful colors, doesn't He? Read more about this in Revelation chapters 21 and 22. When we think of the pearl, it is most interesting to write about since it is produced with such a painful process: When the irritant (a piece of sand or a parasite) gets between the shell and the soft membrane of the little creature inside mollusk coats the "intruder" with layer upon layer of a shiny substance called nacre. Year after year this goes on until finally a precious, beautiful pearl is formed. The covering of the blood of Jesus on our lives (the "sin irritant") produces "pearls" of great ???? also. The suffering and pain that Jesus Christ endured was to "get rid" of our sins. There is absolutely no other way for our sins to be covered.

We cannot "work" or try to be "good" enough. Jesus is the only way to be saved. He is the door. No one comes to God the Father but through Jesus. Read John 10:9. The pearly gates of heaven will someday open for everyone who has their sins forgiven and covered.

If ever you have an "irritant" of hatred, rejection, unkindness, abuse or any other thing that "bothers" you, just remember the story of the pearl and start "coating" that person with the "love" coating. You will be surprised at what will happen. "Love covers a multitude of sins and wrongs." (I Peter 4:8).

We want to stand before God "coated" with His love and grace having done all He wanted us to do so He will say, "Well done!"

Someone said, "Everything you have ever wanted is on the other side of fear." We are fearless people doing the will of God. Someone else said, "Believe you can and you are halfway there." "One life and it will soon be past, only what's done for Christ will last."

Amen!

By: Lonnie Lambert, Oakwood Church of Christ

From the editors of Reader's Digest comes this true and inspiring story:

When Mrs. Klein told her first graders to draw a picture of something for which they were thankful, she thought how little these children, who lived in a deteriorating neighborhood, actually had to be thankful for. She knew that most of the class would draw pictures of turkeys or of bountifully laden Thanks-giving tables. That was what they believed was expected of

WAITING FOR MY SHIP

Weight or wait? These two words are easily confused in the English language. I was thinking of how to make a sentence with these two words and I came across this one: "Don't wait too long to lose weight." While I definitely need to lose a few pounds, my thoughts are not about weight; it's about that annoying thing we all have to do and that is "wait."

The other night while Denny and I were sitting in a local restaurant waiting for our food, I asked him, "I wonder how much time we spend on waiting for things?" We both started naming things, circumstances and events we spend time on "just waiting."

For instance, if we have a doctors appointment, we might spend time sitting in the office waiting to hear the nurse to tell us it is our turn. She will take us back to a room, check our vitals and then we wait. Many times we are clothed in a gown with the back open.

One time I waited so long in a little room in my backless robe and I thought I might have got locked in for the night. (of course this was before cell phones.)

I panicked and pounded on the closed door "I am still here," I hollered. Of course this was "just another wait"

One thing which really bothers me is to be running late and then having to wait for a train. Trust me, when I was driving back and forth to work in Paulding, it seemed like I was always waiting on

I think my employer thought it might be an excuse for being late, however, one day I got out of my car and actually took a picture of that long train. (yes I had a cell phone then.)

We hear people make the remark that they are waiting for "their ship to come in." This means that we are waiting for a ship of good fortune to come our way.

Of course we all have hopes and wait for our ship to come in, but the old saying says you need "to swim out to your ship" Guess what? I can't swim, and I gave up waiting on my ship years ago.

If there is anything I personally hate to do it is wait in line. We all wait in line at the grocery store, license bureau, various events and for places to park. We wait for red lights, slow drivers and if you ride the school bus, you wait for that.

We wait excitedly for Christmas, birthdays, and vacations. The day arrives and it is gone so fast that now we must wait for it again next

Just like I said "much of our time is spent waiting." When you and your friend or spouse are getting ready to go out, are you always ready to leave or does your date or friend have to wait on you?

I must admit, I am a slow one to get ready to go any where. If I am going to a movie or out with my friend, Denny, he will come in and say,"Let's roll."

"No! No! No!," I say, "I'm not ready. I still have to put my makeup on." One time he asked me how long it took me to get ready to go out and I said that it took me at least one hour. When he asked what all I had to do to myself I said, "many things."

I did some research for my own curiosity on how long we spend just waiting for things.

According to a Timex Survey, I found out that we an average of 20 minutes a day waiting a bus or train;

32 minutes average whenever we go visit a doctor;

21 minutes a day waiting for a significant other to get ready to go out;

We wait 13 hours annually waiting on hold on the phone for customer service; (I believe that)

And approximately 38 hours annually waiting in

Well I know we have to wait for things in life, but it is how you handle the wait that counts. Plus there is the saying, "Anything worth wait ing for is worth the wait."

What is the longest time you have spent waiting? Are you a patient waiter? Do you believe that "weight" or "wait" broke the wagon down? Let me know and I'll give you a Penny for Your Thoughts.

ANTWERP CHAMBER SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Antwerp Chamber of Commerce spotlight for January is Small Town Bliss Hair and Nail Studio on 103 W. River St. in Antwerp, Oh.

Audrey Feasby is the owner and a cosmetologist at Small Town Bliss. Audrey graduated from Antwerp High School in 2006. After high school she attended Ravenscroft Beauty College in Fort Wayne. After graduating, she began working at the Shadow Box Salon in downtown Antwerp. The salon was eventually purchased by Audrey's aunt, Paula Lichty, and the name was changed to Keystone Salon. Audrey purchased the business from her aunt in 2014 and changed the name to Small Town Bliss in 2016 when she moved to her current location on River St.

Audrey has always had a passion for doing hair. She enjoys the challenges of getting the style just right and seeing the delight in her client's eyes. She is proud to say that "here at Small Town Bliss your beauty is our business," and she is right. She employs 4 other stylists and a nail technician. Stylists working with Audrey are Paula Lichty (Audrey's aunt), Deb Lucas, Susie Miller and Nicki Harrmann. Chantel Lawson is the nail technician. Small Town Bliss pulls in clientele from not only Antwerp but Payne, Paulding, Hicksville and Woodburn. Besides shampoos, cuts and blow-outs they also do color, foils up to 3 colors, along with up-dos and formal styles for that special occasion and something called Creative Coloring. This is a coloring style with vibrant and lasting results. Two types of creative coloring are Balayage and Ombre. Balayage service is a highlighting technique that targets a smaller section of hair. A colorist paints bleach or hair color just on the surface of your hair freehand; he or she doesn't saturate the entire section with hair dye. The result is soft, natural-looking, sun-kissed highlights that easily blend in as hair grows longer. The uration of the section and at the salon that make every day enjoyable. They all enjoy helping their clients to look and feel their very best. Bridal season, prom time and during the holidays you will find Audrey busily working in her shop to make sure that you are ready for your big day. Audrey was tired of trying to find a shampoo that she loved, one that made her hair feel healthy and looking good without using a lot of chemicals and fillers. She came across a company that helped her develop her own hair care product line. Small Town Bliss is the label and she carries shampoo and conditioner (for both moisturizing and volume), hair spray, amplifying foam, everyday miracle treatment, amethyst oil-which helps with hvdration and frizzy hair and illusionist spray. Chantel Lawson, the nail technician, worked first at Keystone. She stayed with Audrey through the changes and came to Small Town Bliss. Chantel stays very busy with her nail art which is incredibly popular and pedicures which she also does. She is vigilant about keeping her area very clean and professional. She sterilizes her instruments right next to her station and sterilization is done between each client.

The Antwerp Chamber of Commerce is excited to have Small Town Bliss and Audrey and her wonderful staff partnering with us in the Antwerp Community.

Now that we've closed the book on 2019, it's officially Tax Season. As you prepare your tax returns for the April 15 deadline, you might already start looking for opportunities to improve your tax-related financial outcomes in the future. And one important step you can take is to connect your tax professional with your financial advisor. Together, these professionals can help you take advantage of some valuable strategies: Roth vs. traditional

IRA - If you're eligible to contribute to a Roth IRA and a traditional IRA, you might find it beneficial to have your financial advisor talk to your tax professional about which is the better choice. Generally, if you think your tax rate will be higher in retirement, you might want to contribute to the Roth IRA, which provides tax-free withdrawals (if you're older than 59 1/2 and have had your account at least five years). But if you think your tax bracket will be lower when you retire, you might be better off with the traditional IRA, which offers upfront tax benefits - specifically, your contributions may reduce your annual taxable income in a given tax year. Your tax advisor may have some thoughts on this issue, as well as how it might fit in with your overall tax picture in retirement.

Taxable vs. non-taxable income - Turning taxable income into non-taxable income can lower your current year's tax bracket. Depending on your income, you could potentially subtract your traditional IRA contributions (or your SEP-IRA contributions if you're self-employed) from your taxable income. And even now, it's not too late to affect the 2019 tax year, if you still haven't reached the IRA or SEP-IRA contribution limits. Before you file your

If you make the contribution, your financial advisor can illustrate how it would impact your retirement picture and make a recommendation on how to invest the money. (You can fund your IRA with virtually any type of investment - stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and so on.)

Capital gains taxes on mutual funds - You might think you have total control over taxes related to your mutual funds. After all, you decide how long to hold these funds before selling shares and incurring capital gains taxes. However, mutual fund managers are usually free to buy and sell new investments as they see fit, and some of these sales could generate capital gains taxes for you. If these taxes are relatively large in any one year, your tax professional may notice and could relay this information to your financial advisor. This doesn't necessarily mean these mutual funds are inappropriate for you; they still may be suitable for your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon. WINTER IS HERE

By: Stan Jordan

Today is December 21st and it's the first day of winter...whoopee, hurray and all of that crap. All that is good with that date is the next date will be spring.

Now I know that lots of people like winter, all the snow we can get, cold weather and bad roads. I guess I'm an old stick in the mud.

I'm glad to hear that the days started getting longer yesterday, the 20th. I wish they could fast forward till we have nice warm spring days. Yes we will have rain, mud, chilly winds and bad storms, but bring it on.

Yes, there is ground hog day in Pennsylvania, buzzard day in Hinckley, OH and Valentine's Day all over America, but I don't care, bring on the nice warm sunshiny spring days. See ya!

If she stayed in Italy to raise the child, he would also provide child support until the child turned 18. She agreed, but asked how he would know when the baby was born. To keep it discreet, he told her to simply mail him a post card and write, "Spaghetti" on the back. He would then arrange for child support payments to begin.

One day, about 8 months later, he came home to his confused wife. His wife said, "Honey, you received a very strange post card today."

The shopkeeper replied with a sly smile, "Well, little lady, why don't you go give it a try?"

The blonde headed off to the swamp, determined to catch an alligator. Later in the day, the shopkeeper was driving home and spotted the young woman standing waist-deep in the murky water, shotgun in hand.

He saw a huge 9-foot gator swimming rapidly toward her. With lightning reflexes, the blond took aim, shot the creature and hauled it up onto the slippery bank.

Nearby were 7 more dead gators all lying belly up. The shopkeeper watched in amazement as the blond struggled with the gator. Then, rolling her eyes, she screamed in frustration... THIS BAREFOOT TOO!!"

A FLAG POLE

By: Stan Jordan

This is the corner of S. Main and Daggett Street. I have never heard before about a flag pole in the middle of Main Street. I'm sure it was taken out early because that became SR 49 somewhere before 1930.

That right hand store was built about 1900 and was owned by Jerry Anspaugh. In 1911, Joe Carr had a grocery store and meat market on this corner till after WWII, but it had been remodeled a

That next place was Warren Seslar's garage, built in 1912, a very modern and up to date building. Notice the that car on the left is of early 1920 vintage.

The next store after the garage was opened first by Alex Grant as a hardware then L. Smith and Son. bought it in 1908. They demolished it and built it as it is now in 1927. A little later on they became a Buick and Pontiac car dealer. As time went on, about the turn of the century, they were the oldest family owned Buick dealer in Ohio.

Before they went out of business, they had a hardware, sold kitchen equipment, sold farm equipment, new and used cars, all types of garage work was a big part in Antwerp's progress.

By: Paige Jones, Paulding FFA Reporter

A Paulding FFA member sees a need in the Paulding School district and identifies a solution to the need. Jennifer Stahl, a 2019 Paulding FFA graduate distributed over 200 pairs of gloves and hats to Paulding Elementary students through her living to serve plan she developed while attending the Washington Leadership Conference in 2018.

Her Warming hearts and Warming hands campaign was established to ensure that every elementary student in Paulding Elementary had access to a hat and a pair of gloves to wear during the winter months. She constructed a collection bin and challenged the Jr. High and High School students to make a donation of hats and gloves to her campaign. She was able to collect over 200 items to distribute to the elementary students. She identified a need our student district and developed a plan to help students and their families that may not be able to afford to purchase hats and gloves for their students.

At the beginning of December Jen distributed those hats and gloves to the Elementary staff to distribute to students who don't have a hat or pair of gloves to wear. The Paulding FFA and school district is very proud of Jen and her accomplishment of her living to serve plan.

The Paulding FFA is excited to send students to the 2020 Washington Leadership Conference this summer. We look forward to more students developing living to serve plans to help our local community.

After school, groups of students went to each nursing home and went around and visited with the residents and handed them their gift bag.

The Paulding FFA chapter also hosted both a chapter Christmas party and an officer team Christmas party. Several games were played at the party including a racing of unwrapping a cling wrap ball with oven gloves on, getting a cookie off tion to any property as they provide a source of water for animals, crops and people, a place to observe wildlife, and of course to fish according to My Land Plan. My Land Plan offers a few tips to consider before stocking your pond with fish. First to consider is to know the depth and volume of your pond. You want a depth of at least 8-12 feet to avoid any fish kills when winter comes along. Another point to consider is temperature of the water. This will determine the type of fish that will survive in your pond as different fish tolerate various temperature ranges.

Lastly, water quality should be a consideration with pond stocking. According to My Land Plan, runoff and water temperature have some influence on water quality in addition to turbidity (how cloudy the water appears). It becomes difficult for fish to survive in cloudy water. According to Fred Snyder with OSU Extension, keeping a pond healthy depends on reducing weed growth, reducing algae growth, and maintaining oxygen supply. Snyder says weed growth can be reduced by taking away sources of nutrients such as manure, lawn fertilizer, or leachate from your septic tank. Have leaves leftover from fall? Snyder suggest getting rid of those too as decomposing leaves take up dissolved oxygen in the water making less available for things to keep in mind boils down to the use that your pond is going to serve. It is just going to be used for swimming, fishing, or both? Recommendations provided with our fish order forms include suggestions based on a one-acre pond that is used for the following: fishing, mostly fishing and some swimming, mostly swimming and some fishing, and swimming only. Use this table as a guide when determining the amount of fish your pond will need and be sure to contact our office and we will be happy to answer any questions!

According to Freshwater Fish Company, fish stocking is an important part of any pond management system. Selection of fish for your pond depends on the specific goals for your body of water as well as the size of the pond. Ponds can be managed to attract wildlife to your area as well. Clemson University Extension notes the following as good management techniques for ponds: enhancing food availability for fish, controlling harvesting to maintain adequate populations, controlling weeds, and preventing fish kills with good water quality.

Contact the Paulding SWCD at 419-399-4771 or patrick.troyer@pauldingswcd.org for your fish stocking and pond care needs this coming spring! Once again, forms will be due Friday, April 24th to the Paulding SWCD Office located at 900 Fairground Drive Suite B Paulding, OH 45879. Pickup is scheduled for the week of April 27th, details will be sent to customers when orders are placed.

The next production at the Van Wert Civic Theatre, The Savannah Sipping Society, opens on Thursday, January 23 for an eight-performance run over two weekends. The play written by Jessie Jones, Nicholas Hope, and Jamie Wooten centers around four women, who after meeting by chance at a hot yoga studio, plan to meet for drinks. They soon form a strong bond around the desire to regain the enthusiasm for life which they once had. Such a show, requires four strong actors willing to be vulnerable during the show while fully committed to trusting each other. Mary Ann Falk, director of the show, says, "I have been blessed with four women who are literally forming relationships with each other as they work to bring the relationships of the characters to life. The audiences of this show are in for a real treat. You will be laughing one moment and dabbing your eyes the next." Portraying the women in this laugh-a-minute comedy are Nicolle Merkel as Randa, a recently fired architect with financial woes; Terry Plas as Dot, a widow who misses the retirement life she never had with her husband; Amy McConn as Marlafaye, a nurse turned liquor distributor after a nasty divorce; and Jan Miller as Jinx, a beauty consultant with designs on being a life coach. A special appearance is made by Stephanie Wagner as Cordelia Covington.

The intimate performance space of VWCT located at 118 South Race in Van Wert, works particularly well for this production. Those who attend the show may feel like they are sitting on a veranda in Savannah. What could be a better experience during these cold winter days? The Savannah Sipping Society runs January 23, 24, 25, 26, 30, 31, and February 1 and 2. Shows are at 8 p.m. Thursday - Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sundays. Tickets go on sale Monday, January 20. Call 419-238-9689 from 2 - 6 p.m. Monday - Friday, or go to vwct.org to buy tickets online. All tickets are $16 and must be paid for at the time of the reservation.

Anyone buying a ticket for opening night, January 23, is invited to a wine and cheese reception beginning at 7:15 p.m. in the lower lobby. The reception is hosted by the ladies of the Savannah Sipping Society and the VWCT Board of Directors.

MACRO & MICRO relatively large amounts but

A basic understanding of soil fertility is important for high crop production. All crops require seventeen essential nutrients for proper growth and development, the specific amount of each nutrient depends upon the crop. The atmosphere provides hydrogen and oxygen and carbon (most comes from the soil first). The rest must come from the soil and the amount available for a plant depends upon many factors such as the soil type, organic matter, pH, drainage, microbes, temperature, and rainfall. Soil nutrients are absorbed by water being pulled through the plant through transpiration and by roots intercepting the nutrient molecules. Some nutrients are required in large amounts compared to other nutrients and are called primary or macro nutrients. Primary nutrients include nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P), or potassium (K). Nitrogen is used to form amino acids and proteins in the plant and most plants need 3-5.5% of their plant tissue biomass as N. Phosphorus is used in plants as the genetic backbone for DNA, plant cell well formation, and for energy transfer. Plants generally need 0.2 to 0.5% of their plant tissue biomass as P. Potassium is used in the plant to provide plant turgor, to move sugars and starches, to increase photosynthetic production, and to activate enzymes and proteins. Increasing plant K increases protein content or N content. Optimal K levels are 2.5 to 4.0 percent in the whole plant tissue of corn and 4% in soybeans. In most cases the soil cannot provide enough primary nutrients at a critical time to optimize crop production so farmers add N-P-K fertilizer to improve grain yields. Providing for these three elements provide 85-90% of the typical crop yield. Calcium, magnesium and sulfur are also needed in much less than N-P-K and are collectively called secondary nutrients. Organic matter in our soils generally provides adequate levels of sulfur, which limits the need for secondary nutrient fertilizers. However, sulfur may be lost from the soil much like nitrogen. Sandy soil are the most susceptible to low sulfur levels Over the years, most sulfur came from impurities in other fertilizers and from atmospheric deposition (provided by the heavy industry and coal burning facilities). These depositions have gradually decreased in recent years as improvements have been made in air quality. There is now a concern that crops may not be able to obtain adequate levels of sulfur without supplementing with fertilizer. Plant tissue calcium should be in the 0.25 to 0.8 percent range and magnesium in the 0.15 to 0.6 percent range for corn and soybeans while small grains require slightly higher levels. Calcium in plants is used in cation exchange and transport while magnesium is the critical core molecule for chlorophyll used in photosynthesis. Sulfur is tied to protein production and levels range from 0.2 to 0.8 for most crops depending upon the age of the plant. For most plant nutrients, the nutrient concentrations are higher in young plant tissue and during reproduction.

The remaining eight nutrients are required in very small amounts by plant tissue and are called micronutrients or trace elements. These plant nutrients are used in parts per million (ppm). The micronutrients include boron (20-100 ppm), copper (5 to 25 ppm), iron (40 to 300 ppm), manganese (25 to 160 ppm), zinc (20 to 80 ppm), molybdenum (0.2 to 2 ppm), nickel (1-10 ppm) and chlorine. Historically, our soils have adequate levels of these micronutrients. Soil test and tissue test will identify if a micronutrient is deficient. Often the micro nutrient is found in the soil but it may not be in the right form to make it plant available. Increasing soil organic matter and improving soil health though increased soil microbial activity makes all nutrients more available. Manure applied at proper rates is a good source of many macro and micro nutrients and promotes soil health. Farmers often apply micro nutrients to increase crop yields. Some plant food companies promote products based on testimonials and not scientific research, so be careful of what, why, and if you need to buy a particular product. Information for this article was obtained from the Ohio Agronomy Guide and Iowa State University Extension "Plant Analysis and Micronutrients for Crops" bulletin. sion and Jim Hoorman.

Paulding County Juvenile Court Judge Michael Wehrkamp announced the Juvenile Court has been awarded a two-year, $300,000 Competitive RECLAIM grant by the Ohio Department of Youth Services. The new funds will support the development of the county's first community-based youth assessment and evening reporting center.

"There is a movement in juvenile justice to be more proactive and less reactive. My desire is for Paulding County to be at the forefront of that movement and this grant will help get us there," Judge Wehrkamp said. "The assessment center will allow us to assess unruly behavior and determine the most appropriate intervention for the child and family with the goal of avoiding more serious, delinquent behavior in the future."

The center will serve as an integral part of the juvenile probation transformation initiative that will allow youth to be served in the least restrictive setting and give the community the ability to intervene earlier when problem behaviors arise, all while ensuring public safety.

"When a child commits an unruly or delinquent act, we must ask, 'Why did the child behave this way?'," said Court Administrator Elizabeth Zartman. "All too often, the behavior is the product of an untreated mental or behavioral health issue, or inadequate supports for the family. The assessment center will serve as a one-stop shop to identify those issues earlier, linking youth and families with community resources they need before the problems become more serious."

The assessment center is slated to be housed on Paulding's courthouse square in the second-floor space above the Paulding County Board of Elections and Small Business Innovation Center. Melinda Wenzlick has been selected to serve as the director of the center. Prior to accepting this position, Wenzlick administered the Youth Assistance Program for the area Department of Job and Family Services, and she holds her bachelor's degree in social work.

"I could not be more excited to join the Court's team and begin work with our community partners to get the assessment center up and running," said Wenzlick. "The sky is the limit on the positive impact the center can have on the young people of our county and their families."

Once opened, assessment center staff will administer a series of evidence-based assessments and screenings on a youth to determine needs of the individual and his or her family, including whether the youth should be diverted from formal court involvement. If that determination is made, the youth and family may then be referred to a number of community partners who are able to offer services and supports. The assessments and screenings will also help ensure interventions—ranging from secure detention to weekly appointments with staffare selected with objectivity and consistency. "Having the funds to create an assessment center could be transformational for Paulding County," said Judge Wehrkamp. "This grant is the product of a true team effort, and I could not be more appreciative of my staff, our volunteers, and our collaborating partners who are all putting their hearts into making this center a reality for our community."

The grant-writing team consisted of Zartman, community-minded volunteer and retired school administrator Pat Ross, and Judge Wehrkamp.
