SEEKING EMERGENCY AND PREVENTIVE CARE IS VITAL

Emergent health needs will not stop for COVID-19. Lutheran Health Network continues to urge the local community to seek emergency care when it is needed without delay. Receiving urgent medical treatment can make all the difference in determining the final outcome - a message Julia Hinshaw can strongly sup-

After undergoing an endoscopic procedure to place a stent toward the end of January, Hinshaw went back for a follow-up appointment, which revealed the stent was no longer in place. After a round of various scans and the development of severe back pain, it was determined she would undergo an additional procedure in early April to remove the stent. While the procedure was successful, it meant Julia would be required to spend time in the hospital during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"I immediately noticed the various precautions being taken, not just by the gastroenterology staff, but throughout all of Lutheran Hospital," said Hinshaw. "I never once felt unsafe but instead felt very protected by all who played a part in my care."

Among those contributing to her care were Andrew Katz, MD, and Ashish Sharma, MD. Experiencing a health issue while receiving care during a worldwide pandemic, Hinshaw stressed how both physicians provided her extended comfort and assurance during this time. "I know I am just one of their many patients, but their individualized care for me was so genuine," she said. "Dr. Sharma made sure I knew that he was reachable at any time of the day if I ever had any complications."

Among the precautions currently implemented throughout the network, all individuals who enter any LHN facility, including staff, are screened. Additionally, employees, physicians and patients are expected to wear masks. Care

FARM ANIMALS AND COVID-19: SHOULD YOU BE WORRIED?

With the rapid spread of the new coronavirus believed to have started in bats, some people might be genuinely concerned about their farm animals. Could the animals catch COVID-19?

The answer is murky.

While there have been no reported cases of pigs, horses, sheep, chickens, or cows getting COVID-19, their susceptibility to the respiratory disease has yet to be studied.

And though pigs have been able to get COVID-19 in lab studies, it does not appear that they can catch or spread the virus very easily, said Scott Kenney, an assistant professor of veterinary preventive medicine at The Ohio State University College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences (CFAES).

"There are a lot of unknowns," Kenney said.

What is known is that ferrets, minks, domestic cats, and some dogs have become infected with COVID-19. But neither pets nor farm animals are thought to play significant roles in transmitting COVID-19.

Kenney, whose research focuses on viruses that spread from animals to people, is pursuing grants with colleagues to study whether various farm animals are susceptible to COVID-19. He will address the risk of animals catching or spreading COVID-19 during "Ask the Expert" presentations Sept. 22-24 at this year's Farm Science Review, an all-virtual show sponsored by CFAES.

Kenney's talks will be from 11:40 a.m. to noon on Sept. 22 and from 1:20 to 1:40 p.m. on both Sept. 23 and Sept. 24 at fsr.osu.edu.

For the first time in its nearly 60-year history, FSR will be exclusively virtual with livestreaming and prerecorded talks and demonstrations about the latest in research and farm technology. The show is free, but "visitors" must register before they can access all of the presentations.

The novel coronavirus that causes COVID-19 is but one of many viruses in recent years that started in animals, then mutated and adapted so that it could spread to people. Viruses, in general, have been increasingly shifting from animals to people, particularly in the developing world, as people cultivate more and more acres that were once isolated forests and come into contact with wildlife.

While people are currently far more likely to catch COVID-19 from other people—rather than from their farm animals or pets-it's still important for farm workers to wear masks at work, Kenney said. And if they are sick, farmers would do best to avoid being around their animals and have someone else work with them instead, if at all possible, he said.

"Instead of thinking, 'Oh, my animals can't catch my cold,' it's important to consider that these animals could breathe in your virus. It only takes a couple of mutations for these viruses to switch to another species," Kenney said.

As a farmer moves from one building to another on a farm, washing off boots and using a hand sanitizer before leaving each building would help cut the risk of spreading illnesses, Kenney said.

"More frequent washing means they are less likely to carry germs from one pen to the next or home with them."

ARE WE HAVING FUN YET ?

Penny For You Thought By: Nancy Whitaker

It is funny that as we reach certain various ages, how our idea of "fun" changes. My idea of fun today isn't what it was many years ago. When and where does "fun" begin and will you ever not have it?

Babies, for example, will start noticing rattles, stuffed animals and toys at an early age. That is fun for them and parents as well. Babies will coo, laugh and giggle when they are tickled, see a toy or maybe a cat or dog.

Then, when we reach kindergarten and grade school, our ideas of fun change. We find ourselves playing games such as tag, ring around the Rosie and jump rope.

When the weather was nice all the girls would get together and play jump rope. We had sayings that we said as we jumped.

One thing I do remember is jumping so many times and trying to get out of the jump without the rope hitting us without the rope hitting us.

Today, I don't think I could jump over, under, around or the fast game of rope jumping called Peppers.

We all liked playing some outdoor games, playing on the playground, with dolls or playing a good game of jacks.

Remember jacks?
When I was in the sixth grade (back in the dark ages) a bunch of girls would gather at recess and play jacks.

Jacks were 10 weird shaped things and a small ball. You bounce the ball and quickly pick up a jack and catch the ball all in one move. The goal is to get through and pick up

CHOW LINE: SOME
ONIONS, READY-TO-EAT
MEAT, AND POULTRY
PRODUCTS RECALLED

How do I know if the onions or other food products in my pantry or fridge are part of a recall I just heard about?

There are currently two recalls to which you might be referring. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration issued a warning recently about onions that have been recalled by Thomson International Inc. of Bakersfield, Calif., due to concerns that the products might be contaminated with salmonella Newport.

Likewise, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service issued a public health alert this week for ready-to-eat meat and poultry products containing onions that were a part of the FDA warning.

According to the FDA, the onions, recalled on Aug. 1, include all of Thompson International's red, white, yellow, and sweet yellow onions shipped from May 1 through the present. The onions were distributed to wholesalers, restaurants, and retail stores in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and Canada. A list of the recalled onions can be found on the FDA site.

The USDA-FSIS then issued their alert Aug. 5 for ready-to-eat meat and poultry products that contain "onions that have been recalled by Thomson International Inc. due to concerns that the products may be contaminated with salmonella," according to a written statement.

The ready-to-eat meat and poultry products were produced by Taylor Farms on July 30 and 31. A specific list of recalled products can be found on the USDA site.

The move is to try to prevent consumers from developing a foodborne illness from salmonella, which typically causes a million foodborne illnesses in the United States each year, resulting in some hospitalizations and even some deaths, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Salmonella infection can cause diarrhea, fever, and abdominal cramps within 12 to 72 hours of infection, with the symptoms typically lasting four to seven days. In some people, the disease can be so severe that it leads to hospitalization or even death, the CDC says.

As of Aug. 3, some 396 salmonellosis illnesses—including 59 hospitalizations—had been reported after consumers ate the contaminated foods, the CDC says. In Ohio, at least seven people have reported salmonella infections as part of this outbreak, the CDC says.

Consumers who aren't sure if the onions in their pantry are a part of the recall should throw them out, the ample of the need for consumer traceability back to producers, said Kara Morgan, associate director of the Center for Foodborne Illness Research and Prevention (CFI) at The Ohio State University College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences (CFAES).

The center, which was founded as a nonprofit organization in 2006 and became part of CFAES in September 2019, offers links to food safety-related research; food safety education and training resources; food safety online courses; consumer awareness and education information; information on food safety outreach and public service; links to foodborne safety organizations and resources; and a food safety blog.

"Consumers do not have any tools for knowing if the products in their pantries are from Thomson, so this outbreak led to a lot of needless food waste," Morgan said. "The FDA and others are working on systems to improve this, and those solutions cannot come soon enough."

The organization is now represented in more than 104 countries and nearly 1 million people around the world have participated in Living Free small groups.

Each small group is held accountable to strict confidentiality to establish high trust and transparency. Group participants have found the sessions to be "spiritually stirring". additional benefit has been a bonding of Christians together across denominational boundaries.

In a short time, it has become clear that the Living Free Curriculums are helpful to at least 4 different groups of people: 1) those publicly known to be dealing with "life controlling" issues; 2) those who have recovered from these types of issues and now have a passion for helping others do so; 3) many people who are hiding from exposure and help for these issues, due to shame and fear; 4) those associated with others dealing with these problems and are interested in preventing themselves or others from experiencing these prob-

In early 2018, a coalition of local leaders was created to help deal with the present opiate addiction and death crisis in Ohio. This creation followed two driving events: stirring presentations by Darryl Strawberry (a recovered drug addict and Major League All-Star baseball player) followed shortly thereafter with a local forum held in May. Soon after this forum, local members of the community met with Paulding County Common Pleas Judge Tiffany Beckman to learn more about opportunities to complement the local "drug court" program.

This led to a search for a relevant and effective public program to assist those affected by addiction (addicts, their friends, family, coworkers, and anyone else they associate with). In November that same year, Dr. Daniel Schreck, founder of the Connection

Points Living Free ministry in Ft. Wayne, presented at the monthly Paulding coalition meeting. It was at this presentation where individuals expressed interest to attend an upcoming Living Free Facilitator Training session in Ft Wayne. In February 2019, fifteen local individuals went through participation, in a series of sessions of an Insight Group, and subsequently formed the local core team" of a Living Free Community. In May, the local group registered with the state of Ohio as a nonprofit

"Power2Change". Since that time, Power-2Change has offered various Living Free small group curriculums to individuals within the Paulding County area. Already, significant positive life changes have been observed in numerous individuals.

Now, Power2Change is arranging for small-group sessions in various locations throughout Paulding County. Participants from surrounding counties are also welcome. The organization is open to growth into surrounding counties as resources and demand develop. All Power2Change members freely volunteer their time. PAULDING FFA OFFICER TEAM HOLDS RETREAT!

By: Mason Schlatter, FFA Assistant Reporter

The Paulding FFA officer team traveled to Hocking Hills Ohio on July 29th-31st for their annual FFA officer retreat. The purpose of this trip was for the officers to get to know each other better through team building activities and bonding. There were two advisors and eleven officers and one parent chaperone on the trip.

One of the team building activities included planning and shopping for their meals and preparing them together as a team. Officers and advisors also played team building games together. Each officer planned an activity for everyone to participate in. We went hiking at Rock House and, spent time with each other and did planning and goal setting for the upcoming year.

The officer team was fortunate enough to have the 2020-2021 State FFA President Bethany Starlin from Chief Logan FFA Chapter and her advisor Andrew DeLong come and talked to us about what FFA means to us and how we can grow our chapter. They also talked about the importance of working as a team and how good communication would help us work more efficiently. They had a team building game that we all played together and enjoyed that focused on trust and communication. We want to give a special thanks to Bethany for coming and making our retreat so special by getting to visit with the Ohio FFA State President.

The officer team truly benefitted from this time spent together, because it helped us get to know each

TRUMP ADMINISTRATION INVESTS $86 MILLION IN RURAL BROADBAND SERVICE IN EIGHT STATES

The Trump Administration announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is investing $86 million in rural broadband service (PDF, 110 KB) for 17,000 people and businesses in eight states.

"Access to high-speed broadband internet, e-Connectivity, is a cornerstone of prosperity anywhere, but especially in America's rural communities," said USDA Deputy Under Secretary for Rural Development Bette Brand. "Under the leadership of President Trump and Agriculture Secretary Perdue, USDA is committed to using all available tools and resources to increase e-Connectivity across rural America because we know when rural America thrives, all of America thrives."

USDA is providing loans to six telecommunications providers to build, expand and improve broadband services in Alabama, Arkansas, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Tennessee, Texas and Wisconsin. Below are examples of projects that USDA is funding through the Telecommunications Infrastructure Loan and Loan Guarantee Program:

The Ardmore Telephone Company Inc. is receiving a $20 million loan to install 435 miles of Fiber-to-the-Premises (FTTP) in Ardmore, New Market and Elkmont, Ala.; and in Minor Hill and McBurg in Tennessee.

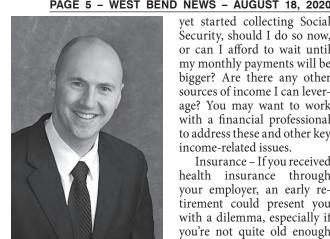

The Pulaski-White Rural Telephone Cooperative is receiving a $19 million loan to install 355 miles of Fiber-tothe-Home (FTTH) technology in the Buffalo and Star City exchanges in Indiana.

In Wisconsin, the Chibardun Telephone Cooperative Inc. is receiving a $10 million loan to install 328.5 miles Fiber-to-the-Premises (FTTP) to serve the rural areas of the Prairie Farm and Sand Creek exchanges.

Since October USDA has invested $744 million to bring high-speed broadband e-Connectivity to 172,000 households, 19,000 rural small businesses and farms, and more than 500 health care centers, educational facilities and critical community facilities in 34

The Telecommunications Infrastructure Loan and Loan Guarantee Program is one of several USDA rural broadband programs. On April 20, 2020, USDA announced the department has received 172 applications for $1.57 billion in round two of the ReConnect Pilot Program. The second round will enable USDA to implement innovative new solutions to rural connectivity by leveraging financial options with our partners and continuing the success of the first round of funding. The application window for round two closed on April 15. USDA Rural Development provides loans and grants to help expand economic opportunities and create jobs in rural areas. This assistance supports infrastructure improvements; business development; housing; community facilities such as schools, public safety and health care; and highspeed internet access in rural areas. WHAT DOES AN UNPLANNED CAREER TRANSITION MEAN FOR

The COVID-19 pandemic has unsettled the country's employment picture for months and will likely continue to do so for a while. However, the nature and terminology of this disruption varies greatly among individuals - some have seen their jobs disappear, others have been "furloughed" and still others have been offered an early retirement. If you're in this final group - those either offered, or feeling forced to accept, an early retirement, how should you respond?

Try to look at your situation holistically, rather than strictly in a short-term manner. Consider these four ar-

Retirement - What does retirement really look like to vou? Are vou ready to fully retire or would you like to work part time? Are you confident that you can work somewhere else for a few years before retiring on your own terms? If you're not certain you can work elsewhere, how can you adjust your desired retirement lifestyle - what you planned to do, where you hoped to live, etc. - to meet your new reality?

Income - Just how financially affected you'll be from an early retirement depends on several factors: how much you've already saved and invested, whether you're married and have a working spouse, whether you've paid off your mortgage, and so on. In any case, though, you'll need to answer several questions, including these: Do I need to start taking withdrawals from my IRĂ and 401(k)? If so, how much can I afford to take out each year without running the risk of outliving my resources? Should I adjust my current investment mix? If I haven't yet started collecting Social Security, should I do so now, or can I afford to wait until my monthly payments will be bigger? Are there any other sources of income I can leverage? You may want to work with a financial professional to address these and other key income-related issues.

Insurance - If you received health insurance through your employer, an early retirement could present you with a dilemma, especially if you're not quite old enough for Medicare. You might be eligible for COBRA, which provides ex-employees and their dependents the option of continued health insurance for potentially up to 36 months, but this coverage can be expensive. As an alternative, you might be able to negotiate an extended severance package, which could provide you with health insurance for several months. Or, you might be able to get on the health insurance plan of your working spouse.

Legacy -Many people want to take care of their family while they're alive - and leave something behind when they're gone. If you take an early retirement, you might lose your employer's group life insurance. Of course, if this plan was not sufficient, you may have already supplemented it with your own policy, but, if you haven't, you may need to shop around for some coverage, particularly if you have children still at home. You also may want to take this opportunity to review your key financial accounts to make sure your beneficiary designations still accurately reflect your wishes.

Going through an unplanned career transition is certainly challenging. But looking closely at the four areas describe above, and making the appropriate moves, may help you reduce some of the stress and can put you in a better position to start the next phase of your life.

BASEBALL

By: Stan Jordan

Boy was I glad to see that baseball season finally got off to some kind of start.

A lot of plans for this season might not happen because some of the team players have tested positive for this 19 stuff.

So like anything else, now you play it one day at a time. The officials in the league office laid down some more rules but this kind of season is not a true test. I do enjoy the national past time even in a sad shape like it is.

It is a day by day deal for the managers, maybe a player or so will test positive and you can't use him (or them) for who knows how long, but in that line, they are allowed to carry more players if they have them.

We fans still have to play it by ear as there is bound to be problems before series time.

Do you see these tall pilasters here? I think they stood alone like sentinals for many years. Then someone with authority made them get torn down and the lot sold to VFW. They were all demolished and hauled away and dumped as fill for the United Methodist Church and that's a story in itself. Up until 1930 or so, US 24 east of the Methodist church went into a valley, it was quite a hill and drop off. There was even a house and barn in that valley about where the north side of the church is.

Before they paved US 24, they hauled in lots of fill to make it about even to the east and west like it is now.

Then in early 1960's all of the debris from the burning of the Antwerp Parlor Furniture building was cleaned up and dumped in that low I think the last people to ed that the grant will be for a total of five years. Per the ED, the program's purpose is to provide academic and other support services to low-income, first-generation or disabled college students to increase retention and graduation rates, facilitate transfers from two-year to four-year colleges, and foster an institutional climate supportive of the success of low-income and first-generation college students and individuals with disabilities.

TRIO SSS PROGRAM DETAILS TRIO SSS Program participants must be low-income, first-generation college students, or individuals with disabilities. All participants must be enrolled or accepted for enrollment in a program of postsecondary education at an institution of higher education and have a need for academic support. Required SSS program services include: (1) academic tutoring; (2) advice and assistance in postsecondary course selection; (3) information on financial aid programs and benefits and assistance in completing financial aid applications, including the FAFSA; (4) education or counseling services designed to improve financial and economic literacy; (5) activities designed to assist participants enrolled in four-year institutions in applying for admission to, and obtaining financial assistance for enrollment in, graduate and professional programs; and (6) activities designed to assist students enrolled in twoyears institutions of higher education in applying for admission to, and obtaining financial assistance for enrollment in, four-year programs of postsecondary education.

NSCC SERVICES RE-SULTING FROM THE SSS GRANT

Some of the potential services NSCC can provide these new students include individualized counseling for personal, career and academic matters, specifically-designed information and instruction geared towards career prep, mentoring programs involving faculty and/ or students, and much more. It is expected the College will hire a project director, a student success coach, and an academic coach (all full-time positions) for the program. "THE TRUE WINNERS

ARE OUR LEARNERS"

NSCC Executive Vice President Todd Hernandez noted, "The true winners are the NSCC learners. This grant will enable us to put systems in place to truly provide the concierge service that many of our at-risk learners need for success. Earning this grant as a firsttime recipient is an extraordinary achievement and a testament to the great team we have at NSCC. I am continually impressed and humbled by the school's accomplishments, and grateful for the opportunity to work with the Department of Education on the TRIO SSS Program." The new republican pledge will go "I pledge allegiance to the Trump, of the United Trumps of Trumpamerica! and to the former republic, which no longer stands, one nation wholly owned by Trump, with no God, without liberty and Bill Barr injustice for all!." You Trump supporters have drank the Kool-Aid (think Jim Jones and Jonestown), and cannot see what your new authoritarian mis-leader is doing to a soon to be former democratic government! Trump is trying very hard to set himself up as an autocratic dictator, his only goal is to stay in office as long as he's alive! Actually you all are not Trump supporters, you are complicit with Trump at destroying our constitutional government one department at a time! Anyone in the justice department who looked into Trump's Russian connections in 2016 have been fired or moved! Guilty parties have been exonerated even after pleading guilty! He has fired or repositioned 20-30 year veterans in the intelligence departments and replaced them with "yes" people who will not mention the name Putin! He has wiped out the Radio Free American Broadcasting and replaced the head with a campaign contributor! He always tries to denigrate the media, same as a 3rd world dictator would do! He belittles our great military heroes, and exonerates a criminal who killed civilians in Afghanistan for target practice! He's sending out hit squads to force violence against peaceful protesters, guaranteed for now by the constitution! Trump has gone so far as to cut funding to our postal service, fired the postmaster general, and replaced him with a Trump supporter who has taken sorting equipment from distribution centers, and killed overtime to sort ballots and mail until AFTER the election Nov. 3rd!

Trump has went back to the sick birther lies about Kamala Harris, an American born citizen! You enablers who think Trump was chosen by God, I don't want to what God you worship! The God I was taught of is a benevolent God, and I believe his son would have considered Trump as a heretic, or a hand of the Devil! In a past editorial, I said I wasn't that religious, let me clarify that I do not belong to a church, because the one I used to belong to was trying to infer if I wasn't voting the so-called Christian Conservative way, I wasn't a Christian. I believe that if Jesus was here today, he would be a Democrat, a union member, and would take care of those who need help...the elderly, poor children, and be a benevolent member of society, not a gun-toting racist-bigoted white supremacist as the Trump complicit supporters would have us believe! History only repeats itself so many times until people finally wake up! I can say as a former republican, when Reagan and his bunch lied and covered up the Iran-contra, Bush-Cheney lied about Iraq, and how the republicans in congress and senate did all they could to damage Obama/Biden for 8 years, the bill comes due! If you want to keep a democratic republic of United States, the choice is Biden/ Harris, if you want to be complicit in turning our democracy into an authoritarian dictatorship, Trump/Pence is your decision! Let me just point out, look at Belarus, Brazil, Turkey, Russia, North Korea! Is that the type of government you want to live in? With Trump/Pence voter suppression, 2020-2024 you will be in that kind of nation!

Oh, I forgot the pandemic Trump ignored, and allowed to get out of hand! (but honestly, you all already know

THE GREATEST QUES-

In Psalm 83: 1- 18 we read: 'Keep not thou silence, O god, and be not still. For thine enemies make a tumult and they that hate thee have lifted up the head. They have taken crafty counsel against thy people and consulted against them. They have said, 'come and let us cut them off from being a nation' Let thy name of Israel be no more."

This is also about our country (the USA). We have the same enemies too!

The Psalmist goes on to say: "O God, make them as a wheel; as the stubble before the wind. As the fire burns wood, so persecute them with they tempest, and make them afraid with thy storm. Fill their faces with shame, that they may seek thy name, O Lord. Let them be confounded and troubled forever, yea, let them be put to shame and perish; that men may know that thou whose name alone is Jehova, are most high over all the earth." Isn't this what we as patriots and Americas who know the pain and history of how we became so great and wonderful a nation feel?

Those who came to our shores from England knew what oppression was and they dedicated this land to God and to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. As we were working our way through hardships, pain and trials to become a land of the FREE with equity for ALL we also were being infiltrated with devious ideas and plans to hinder our progress. The 'deep state' and the 'shadow government' did not come about recently but had it's 'roots' in our 'space' for a very long, long time. Satan always tried to 'throw a wrench' into what good people are trying to do. He 'creeps' in like a 'slithering snake' multiplied into a 'viper's nest'.

We let our children be taught by ungodly teachers who took away or changed our history, where now they (our children) want socialism and entitlements. We 'sat' quietly while the Bible, prayer and the Ten Commandments were removed from our schools and other places.

We passed laws allowing women to murder their children, calling it a "woman's right." The holy bond of marriage between a man and woman was replaced with new laws that let men with men and women with women marry! If this does not make your righteous blood 'boil' please check your pulse. Children now wonder if they are a girl or a boy. What a mess we are in and what non sense! Where are the brain of we people? Where is the fighting spirit that hates what God hates and loves what God loves. "Hate the evil and love the good and establish judgement in the gate." (Amos 5:15).

While we slept, the 'vipers' were wide awake and moving. Only God can help us now and ONLY if we want Him to. Our country is at a crossroads and we need to decide if we have the desire and energy to pray. In 2Chronicles7:14 it says: "If my people which are called by my name shall be humble themselves, pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from Heaven forgive their sins and heal their land ." O Lord, break off their fangs. Tear out the teeth of these young lions, Lord. Let them disappear like water into thirsty ground. Make their weapons useless in their hands. Let them be as snails that dissolve into slime, and as those who die at birth, who never see the sun. God will sweep away both old and young. He will destroy them more quickly than a cooking pot can feel the blazing fire of thorns beneath it. The godly shall rejoice in the triumph right. no Open House event prior to the start of school. Part of our excitement for the start of this school year is the re-opening and return of our students to the school building following the forced closure that took place from mid-March to late May. Students will be able to attend our school and engage in-person with a structured environment centered around public health and wellness with a multitude of safety measures in place. The planning we've done to get us to this point has been extensive. Antwerp Local Schools staff have engaged in discussions with experts from the health and medical field and numerous school leaders across Ohio to gather their ideas, concerns, and best practices to safely bring students back into our school. We plan to institute multiple layers of safeguards to protect your child's health such as social distancing, hand-washing, use of hand sanitizers and face coverings. We have also re-structured how students will move about in the school building and the frequency of their movement as a means of limiting contact with others. With respect to guidelines established by the Ohio Department of Health, students in grades K - 12 and school staff are required to dent forgets or losses one. In order to effectively carry out our re-opening, we will need parents to assist us with educating your child on the importance of maintaining safety routines and exhibiting healthy behaviors. School personnel will likewise continually emphasize and reinforce student responsibility for safe and heathy behaviors that protect them and those around them. School personnel will clean, disinfect, and sanitize our school buses after the a.m. and p.m. routes. Our custodians will likewise have a detailed time schedule to clean, disinfect, and sanitize our restrooms, playground, and high traffic areas.

On the academic front, our staff will continue to receive professional development opportunities during this school year that increase their awareness and skill-set toward providing remote instruction and student acquisition with respect to academic content standards. months, improvements to the school building and property have included the installation of new carpet in Band and Music rooms. We have also added an astro-turf playground area for our elementary students to move about and play. The roof over the Auditeria and Band/Music classrooms was replaced. Additionally, exterior access doors were put in at the Field House and an extension to the storage shed at the football/track complex was completed.

Parents are reminded that we will once again utilize the number tag system for elementary student pick-up in the large circle drive at dismissal time. If you are unfamiliar with this system and need a number tag or forgot your family number, please call the central office at extension 2300 or elementary office at extension 2200.

Community members are encouraged to frequently visit our school website and view happenings taking place at our school. Additionally, parents are reminded that the ONEVIEW parent portal is located in the PARENT RESOURCE tab and QUICK LINKS tab in the upper righthand corner of the website. Parents may utilize the ON-EVIEW parent portal to update student information such as change in address and/or contact numbers. The ONEVIEW Portal also serves as a location for parents to complete student forms (Emergency Medical Form, Transportation Form) that in past years, had been completed with paper forms. The ONEVIEW parent portal is also the location parents may visit to complete the registration process for new students to our district.

We have one new employee that will work with your children during the coming school year. Mrs. Megan Burill will serve as an Intervention Specialist and work with our Special Needs children at the elementary school level. We have several employees who will serve in a different capacity this year in comparison to the previous school year. Mrs. Brittni George will return to her Grade 1 teaching position following a one-year parental leave. Mrs. Sara Schaper will move from Grade 1 to a Grade 3 teaching position. Mrs. Jenny Grant will move from a part time aide to a full-time aide position. Mr. Kyle Kauser will assume all duties associated with the Transportation Director position following the retirement of Mrs. Chris Hounshell. As of the writing of this article, we are working with the Western Buckeye Educational Service Center to secure the use of a Distance Learning Coach to assist our students participating in our Remote Learning program.

As the new school year begins, please remember that the most meaningful factor in assisting students to have a successful school experience is our ongoing partnerships with parents and guardians. In order to help your children attain their goals, we need your involvement, whether through attending conferences, extra-curricular events, volunteering in your child's school, or, perhaps most importantly, reinforcing the importance of education and on-time school attendance.

Through the range of experiences and emotions throughout a year, from celebrations to heartbreak, we should always remember that we are all stronger - and our students' experience better – when we work together as a team, extended family and community.

Remember to stay informed about your child's school through our website: www.antwerpschools.org

Enjoy the last few weeks of summer vacation and best wishes for a successful school year. Sincerely,

-Martin A. Miller, Superintendent, Antwerp Local Schools

PAULDING PLANNING NEW SKATEBOARD PARK

The Paulding Parks board met on Tuesday, August 11 at LaFountain Park pavilion, discussing the future of the parks in Paulding. Paulding village residents were there to discuss changes needed and to see what could or should be done. While at the meeting Dale Goebel, Village Administrator, introduced plans with security cameras and lighting to make sure the park and the kids stay safe. The old cameras still function and may be able to be used in a location that doesn't require as a high of resolution. The 25' poles are going to be installed in a place that will allow the new LED lights to illuminate the park for the cameras and safety. Todd Schweller already replaced some of the lights from the pavilion side and it is much better. The cost to install the pole, 2 cameras and lights is about $7500.

The village received a Community Block Development Group grant up to $50,000 in matching funds through MVPO and this will be put to use in the Mary (Sal)

Hench Skate park where the old equipment is deteriorating. City Councilman Tim Boss said he travelled to several skate parks and looked to see what would work well. Some were made of concrete and others were metal. The metal parks were galvanized to keep the equipment from rusting. The price that was given to Dale was just under $100,000. Andrea Schlueter, Parks Board, asked if would be possible to sell the old park equipment to interested parties and recoup some of the monies and apply them to the new equipment. Andrea stated that she had investigated the parks in Van Wert and Defiance and had sent ideas

The playground equipment was also discussed. Some of the wood has rotted and split with age. Dale pointed out the necessary repairs to make the rails safe from splinters and screws. He also suggested to the parks board to concrete the pathway from the pavilion to the playground and put the sponsor bricks in a wall and keep people from walking on it. This would make the path smooth rather than rickety bricks now.

Recently, they have been using their cut-and-sew business to produce personal protective equipment products for those in need. Universal Lettering has retooled it's cut and sew operation in Ohio to produce PPE equipment to help slow the spread of Covid-19. Additionally, they designed the first Future Farmers of America Jacket in 1933 and still remain the primary supplier of the FFA Jacket. After these visits, the Congressman shared a brief history of Van Wert outside of the courthouse in Van Wert.

by the Portuguese into the southern regions of W. Africa. In 1713 in Capetown, Africa, a ship brought in contaminated bed linen from India. The first outbreak of smallpox in the Americas was among African slaves on the island of Hispaniola in 1518. Soon, 200,000 of the Ameri/ Indian labor force was lost to the disease. The slave trade was stimulated by this from West Africa to the Americas. The "first germ warfare agent" is reputed to be SMALLPOX. In the war of 1763 between England and France for control of North America, under orders of Sir Geoffrey Amherst (Commander-in-Chief of North America) the British troops were asked, "Could it not be contrived to send the smallpox among those disaffected tribes of Indians? We must on this occasion, use every stratagem in our power to reduce them." The ranking British officer for the Penn. Frontier, Col. Henry Bouquet, wrote ed with scabby material from the smallpox pustules and then delivered to the Indians, allowing the spread of the disease among these highly susceptible individuals. This led to extensive numbers of Indian deaths and ensured their defeat. CAUSE OF SMALLPOX The cause of smallpox is a virus, one of the largest of the viruses; with proper illumination it can actually be seen under a light microscope. Usually, the smallpox virus enters the body through droplet infection by inhalation. However, it can be transmitted by direct contact the Indians with some blankets that may fall into their hands and take care not to get the disease myself." Blankets

The infectious material from the pustules can remain infectious for months. The virus multiplies in the mucous membranes of the mouth and nose. During the first week, there is no sign of illness; however, the virus can be spread by coughing or by nasal mucus at this time. The virus moves on to the lymph nodes and then to the internal organs via the bloodstream. Once there, it multiplies again and then reenters the bloodstream. Around the 9th day the first symptoms appear of headache, fever, etc. and sometimes convulsions. The person begins to feel quite ill. A few days later a characteristic rash appears. The individual is infectious a day before the rash appears and until all the scabs have fallen off. Many infected person die a few days or a week after the rash appears. DESTRUC-TION OF THE SEBACEOUS OIL GLANDS OF THE SKIN LEAVES PERMANENT CRATERLIKE SCARS IN THE SKIN, KNOWN AS POCKMARKS. There are 2 varieties of the smallpox (variola) virus: major and minor. They can be distinguished by differences in their genes. Variola major, the deadlier form, frequently killed up to 25% of its victims, although in native populations such as the Amerindians the fatality rate could exceed 50%. Variola minor, a milder pathogen, had a fatality rate of about 2% and was more common in Europe until the 17th century, when it mutated to the more lethal form, perhaps as a result of reintroduction from the Spanish colonies in the Americas. In the 17th century, smallpox was Europe's most common and devastating disease, killing an estimated 400,000 persons each year. It caused onethird of all cases of blindness. By the beginning of the 18th century, nearly 10% of the world's population had been killed, crippled, or disfigured by smallpox. The 18th century in Europe has been called the "age of powder and patches" because pockmarks were so common. The "beauty patch" (a bit of colored material) seen in many portraits was designed to hide skins scars. In this way, the pockmark set a fashion.

TOLEDO RESIDENTS EXPERIMENT WITH CIVILIAN RIGHTS OF NATURE ENFORCEMENT

Phone: 419-258-2000 • Email: info@westbendnews.net

Cantu

Three residents of Toledo, Ohio have presented arguments in the Ohio Sixth District Court of Appeals to enforce the Lake Erie Bill of Rights (LEBOR), the first law in the U.S. to secure legal rights of a specific ecosystem. The arguments were in defense of a "Pro Se" lawsuit brought by the residents themselves. The lawsuit, filed last year, originates from a clause within LEBOR, which allows residents to file suit to enforce residents' rights and those of the Lake Erie ecosystem.

In prepared remarks, later presented in court on August 5, 2020 via video conference, Toledo resident Mike Ferner pleaded for a "turn away from the depleted and deadly precedents that have brought life on Earth to the brink." "A century from now, if our species survives, people will undoubtedly wonder how we could possibly have defined Lake Erie, a necessity for survival, as mere property to be exploited instead of a living and life-giving body with an inherent right to be healthy," Ferner's statement reads.

"Residents not only passed the historic Lake Erie Bill of Rights, they exhausted all available methods within the current legal system to protect the lake. And the state continues to legalize pollution and add new protections for corporate polluters of the lake-failing in its duty to protect the lake. Something new is required to preserve life surrounding and within the imperiled lake," said CELDF Ohio Community Organizer Tish O'Dell.

The Rights of Nature movement is entering a new phase: enforcement," said CELDF attorney Lindsey Schromen-Wawrin. "We salute the plaintiffs' actions and are heartened to see residents take seriously the need for creative civilian enforcement of the Rights of Nature."

Following the passage of Ohio Chamber of Commerce-drafted state legislation to undermine the enforcement of rights of ecosystems within the state, a federal judge in February 2020 decided to invalidate LEBOR.

NSCC WELCOMES BOARD MEMBERS APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR DEWINE

Archbold, Ohio - Ohio Governor Mike DeWine recently appointed various Board of Trustees representatives for colleges and universities around the state, including three Board members for Northwest State Community College. One of the appointments was for a new Board seat, while the other two were reappointments. Ronald Ernsberger (Napoleon), Jeff Erb (Stryker) and Scott Mull (Van Wert) were all appointed to the NSCC Board of Trustees by Governor DeWine.

Ronald Ernsberger

Mr. Ernsberger represents Henry County as a new Board member. Ernsberger's term runs from July 31, 2020 to June 9, 2026. Ernsberger's appointment fills the seat previously held by Dr. Bob Hall (Napoleon), whose term expired June 2020.

Jeff Erb

Mr. Erb represents Williams County as a continuing Board member. Erb's term runs June 10, 2020 to June 9, 2026. Erb is a Past Chair of the Board of Trustees and serves as an alternate on the Finance Committee. Regarding the reappointment, Erb said, "I want to thank Governor DeWine for allowing me to serve another term at Northwest State Community College. I have truly enjoyed being part of the Board and am looking forward to another 6 years. NSCC is a true gem for education in our area. I am very proud of the performance of our administration, Dr. Thomson and staff and I am very appreciative of the wonderful Board members I get to serve beside. The educators and support staff are the best around. The future of the students of Northwest State is very bright and I am excited to play my small part."

Mr. Mull represents Van Wert County as a continuing Board member. Mull's term runs June 10, 2020 to June 9, 2026. Mull noted about the reappointment, "It's an honor to be reappointed as a member of the Board of Trustees for Northwest State. I look forward to working with fellow trustees to further the College's mission and vision as well as sharing with the college, Van Wert County's educational perspective and needs. This will serve to enhance the collaborative relationship between NSCC and Van Wert County to provide additional educational resources for the county as well as support a base of future potential NSCC students and graduates." Mull is 2nd Vice Chair of the Board of Trustees, and serves on both the Board Executive Committee and Finance Committee.

NSCC President Dr. Michael Thomson offered his heartfelt appreciation and gratitude to the Board of Trustees for their work on behalf of the College and in the community. Thomson noted "NSCC is blessed to have a strong civically-committed citizenry. Our Board has shown a strong commitment to partner with senior leadership as we point the institution towards our mission to improve the lives of individu-

Thomson continued, "It has been my personal pleasure to work with Trustees Jeff Erb and Scott Mull, and I am excited to continue those relationships. In addition, I am excited to welcome Ron Ernsberger to our Board. He is well known as a strong businessman in our area, and his expertise is welcome as we move forward with our fiscal '20-'23 Strategic Plan. Personally, the Board has been a strong source of both professional and personal support. We are currently in

While patrolling Clark Lake Wildlife Area in Clark County, State Wildlife Officer Jeff Wenning, assigned to Darke County, discovered a vehicle parked at the lake. Officer Wenning exited his cruiser and began walking the path to where the vehicle was parked. As he approached, he observed an individual using a cast net to take fish. He watched the angler take several small fish with the net and place them into his bucket. Officer Wenning contacted the angler. An inspection of the bucket revealed game fish and shad. When asked how he caught the game fish, the angler admitted to taking them with the cast net. The game fish taken were 11 crappie, two sunfish, and one largemouth bass. The angler was cited for taking fish other than shad with a net. It is illegal to take game fish with a cast net in Ohio. The angler appeared in court where he entered a guilty plea and was ordered to pay $50 in fines.

AN ESCAPED SLAVE'S JOURNEY TO PAULDING COUNTY - PART 2

The riverboat Silver Moon, on which Loyd Phillips took a job during the Civil War traveling from Cincinnati to New Orleans. He saved his wages to steal his wife out of slavery.

The journey of Loyd Phillips (1840-1929) from slavery to freedom in the Civil War era was scribbled on scraps of paper, old envelopes and even the backs of calendars. Members of the John Paulding Historical Society and a Phillips family descendant transcribed and organized Loyd's story.

After his first wife passed away, Loyd Phillips married Georgiana Howard in 1881. One of their eight children was George Phillips, who became a benefactor of the John Paulding Historical Society Museum.

FREEDOM, BUT WITH-OUT MY FAMILY: CO-LUMBUS, OHIO

"After failing to join the army in Pittsburgh, I took a train back to Columbus, Ohio. I was glad to be back in Ohio and got my first job. I found that they were running a streetcar line from the depot to the main part of town. The streetcar was drawn by a horse and I was given a job of taking care of the horses to draw the streetcar. The horses were changed once a day at noon. The wages received for caring for these horses and stables was $1 per day or $6 per week of which I paid $3 a week for room and board. I remained on my job a week. The wages made in Columbus was the first free money I made.

"I spent Sunday in Columbus during which time I began to make inquiry about my father, Abraham Phillips. (Abraham took his master's name upon receiving freedom. I also took the Phillips name because Phillips was a good master and Barbour was a cruel man.)

"I promised to pay the landlord after I made my draw, but upon receiving my wages, I walked out into the country about 6 or 7 miles to see if I could find anybody who knew anything about my father. I was unable to get information about him, but a man informed me that a good many colored people were in Xenia, Ohio. So, I again returned to Columbus.

FREEDOM, BUT WITH-OUT MY FAMILY: CIN-CINNATI, OHIO

"Being unable to find my father, I made up my mind to go back after my wife [Lucy]. I went to Cincinnati and got a job running the river. I ran the river for one year and made four trips to New Orleans. The war was still going on when I made these trips. Silver Moon, Golden Eagle and Alice Dean were some of the boats making the trip to New Orleans from Cincin-

"I served as a deck hand on Silver Moon and Golden Eagle. We received wages going down the river to New Orleans, but all we received coming back was our board. The wages ranged from less than $.50 a day to $2 per day. But the wages paid averaged from $1.50 to $2 per day going down and nothing but board coming back. This made it hard to save anything so one had to be economical.

"Deck hands were called roustabouts. Being in rebel country, the colored deck hands were afraid to leave the boat. So it was an easy matter to keep us on the boat. I remained on the boat until the river froze up.

"I had to save my money and had to get it in the form of bills and sew it up in the lining of my britches in order to keep the other deck hands from knowing that I had it and to prevent them from stealing it. By being economical I saved about $25 or $30 during the times I served as deck hand. After saving up this amount I decided to quit the river and to steal my wife out of slavery.

FREEDOM FOR MY

"I made a trip out to the Harboldt plantation and told my wife to sell off all the things and make preparation for leaving when I called for her. I made two more trips to New Orleans and then I called for her.

"I gave a man $25 to set me and my wife across the river on a flat boat. We arrived at the river at daybreak and were followed by both Harboldt and Barbour in pursuit. I got the man to go out from Louisville to get my wife and had to pay him part of it down. The man who moved them was a colored man. The agreement was to go after my wife and a few pieces of furniture. The furniture consisted of a bureau, a trunk and a few bed

"It was here in Paulding County that I found my father Abraham, and here is where I moved my family and settled in Washington Township. Here is where I built a log house beside my father's small shanty.

"Father Abraham had been given a mortgage on the forty acres, and when I arrived he told me that he wasn't well. Also, he said he wasn't unable to pay off on a loan and was about to lose the property. He talked to me and urged me to pay off the mortgage and take half the land. I agreed to do so and I also bought Aunt Nellie's portion of 20 acres on the east sector. Here, I cared for my father until he passed away in 1874.

HERITAGE LIONS CLUB MEETING

The Heritage Lions Club met on Tuesday, August 12 to elect new officers, and distribute funds to the community. Larry Smith will become president for 2020-2021; Rick Boys vice-president; Cindy Wolf, secretary; Dick Weber, treasurer; Tom Wolf and Dave Hockemeyer, board members; Kathleen Coy, tailtwister; and Tom Bullerman, Lion tamer.

The Heritage Lions board plans to meet monthly on the second Tuesday of each month. The next meeting will include a general meeting to induct five new members into the club. It is scheduled for September 8 at the park pavilion.

The Heritage Lions board approved distribution of funds totaling $4200 to 14 organizations. These included local food banks, EMS/ fire stations, and five organizations working to improve the lives of the seeing-impaired, and cancer patients. Previously in 2020 the Lions had distributed $2584 to eight local groups, bringing their total donations for the year to $6784 to 22 groups. This is less than half of the normal total, due to restrictions incurred during the pandemic. Please contact a Heritage Lions member to become a part of this very worthy organization.

VOLE ALERT

Farmers are reporting crop damage from voles (field mice). Oval bare patches and burrows in soybeans or wheat fields indicate voles are present. Vole populations peak every 2-5 years. Cold harsh winters (2018, 2019) were the vole bottom and populations rebounded due to a mild 2020 winter. Snow and crop residue insulate voles against the cold. Voles do not hibernate but they need 40% more energy to survive cold winters. It is now time to view crop damage and to devise a plan to reduce vole damage next spring.

Voles are 3-7 inches long, with short ears, small eyes, short tails, and brownish gray fur. There are two types of voles (meadow vole, prairie vole) that cause crop damage. Meadow and prairie voles are similar in appearance except prairie voles may have a yellow belly. Prairie voles' mate for life and are normally seen in pairs, while meadow voles are usually alone. Highly prolific, meadow voles have 4-8+ litters per year, up to 11 young per litter under optimal conditions of food and shelter, and average 40-50 young per year. They wean their young in 12-14 days and their offspring may reproduce in 21 days. Prairie voles have 2-4 litters per year with 20-30 offspring and their young reproduce in 35-40 days. Prairie voles have higher survivability while meadow voles have greater than 80% mortality. Most voles live only 6-18 months, reproducing quickly when food and shelter are abundant. Voles generally live in .25 to 1.5- acre areas. They eat seeds and vegetation that have a high protein (nitrogen) content or low carbon: nitrogen ratio like soybeans. In early spring, voles eat newly emerging seedings or dig up the seed. They graze soybean stems 6-10 inches up the stem. They feed every 2-3 hours, staying close to their nest or burrow. In mid- summer, when the vegetation grows high and food becomes scarce, voles migrate out, up to 2 miles away. They may return in late summer early fall, when crops are harvested. Voles are considered a keystone mammal because they are a food source for many predators: hawks, owls, falcons, fox, coyotes, etc. To combat voles naturally, place 10-foot high iron fence posts with a bar as a perch around clusters of vole activity. Owls, hawks, eagles, falcons and many birds of prey use perches as an efficient way to scout and gather food. The American falcon or kestrels are great vole predators. Perches can be installed after harvest, but keep a map of where they are posted and paint the perches a bright color. Deer like to rub against the posts and knock them over and no one wants to run a steel post through their equipment. Coyotes eat more voles but have a large 20 to 30-mile scavenging range while foxes stay in a much smaller area. Avoid over hunting if vole populations are high.

In these COVID 19 times, some farmers have invented a new sport. Rat terrors and about 10 dog species are great "terrors of rats and mice". A Michigan farmer with 3 rat terrors reported killing 250 voles in two hours. He helps the dogs by taking a shovel and disturbing active burrows so the voles flee, increasing his vole termination rate. In summer, voles are most active at night, right before sunset, or as the sun comes up. In the winter, they feed during the day, often under the snow. A word of caution, small dogs make great pets and hunters but do not allow them to lick your wife or kids after a vole hunt! Voles carry many diseases harmful to humans. Modifying food and shelter are key strategies to reducing vole populations. Fall mowing of ditches, waterways, cover crops, and other tall vegetation down to 8-12 inches increases predation by birds and mammals. Rotary hoeing in the fall or early spring (especially early morning or before sunset) disrupts nests and terminates many voles. At harvest, use chaff choppers to spread crop residue evenly over the whole field. Cover crops should be a 50% live-50% winter killed mix and should be drilled, not broadcast. Tillage and poisonous baits are only 50-60% effective, so good vole control requires a combination of management practices. New Alert: If vole populations are increasing, so are slugs because they like the same habitat! For more information, see hoormansoilhealthservices.com for factsheets and power points on vole and slug control.

LAROSE SENDS 48-POINT GUIDANCE REQUIREMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS TO COUNTY BOARDS

In collaboration with the Centers for Disease Control and the Ohio Department of Health, Secretary of State LaRose issued the Ohio Voting Safety Plan to our state's 88 county boards of elections. The 48-point plan sets forth requirements for boards of elections, as well as recommendations for voters, for how to run a safe and healthy election this fall. While many state legislatures and policy makers are grappling with finding ways to provide the multiple voting options recommended by the CDC, Ohio finds itself in the fortunate position of needing only small changes to improve the already safe, secure, and accessible elections system that we have in place. Ohio has long offered three different ways to vote: by mail; early in-person during the four weeks preceding Election Day, including evenings and weekends; and in-person on Election Additionally, boards of elections provide curbside voting and have a secure drop box at every board of elections for voters who do not want to enter the board office or a polling location. Further, the Secretary of State's Office required boards of elections to move polling locations out of facilities that serve vulnerable populations. Therefore, Ohio already meets the CDC's lower risk election polling location recommendations.

The Ohio Voting Safety Plan sets in place guidance that will enhance the ability of county boards of elections to keep their voters and election officials safe. The plan sets in place 48 points that include the following:

Routine cleaning of voting machines and e-pollbooks

Mask requirements and regular hand washing for all poll workers

Making curbside voting available

All voters will be encouraged to wear a mask, just as the vast majority of Ohioans do at the grocery store or a restaurant. It's important to note that while the Secretary of State may put requirements in place for election officials, no one can or should be able to prevent electors from casting their ballot, even if the elector chooses not to follow the recommendations in place to protect poll workers and other voters. In addition to opportunities to vote early by mail and early in-person, voters choosing to cast their ballot on election day will have the option to vote curbside if they are physically unable to enter a polling location.

More than 15 years ago, Purdue University Fort Wayne's Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders began discussing the creation of a graduate degree in speech-language pathology. Then the Great Recession from 2007 to 2009 put those plans on hold.

In 2016, the department picked up where it had left off and began creating the curriculum for the program. That took about two years, followed by another two years of gaining the approval of the Purdue University Board of Trustees, the Indiana Commission for Higher Education, and then finally an accreditation from the Council on Academic Accreditation in Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology.

That accreditation was granted July 28, and the first class in the program is being offered for the upcoming fall

"Accreditation of the program was required for our students to be eligible to be certified by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association as speech-language pathologists," stated Stacy Betz, chair and associate professor of the department. "Having this accreditation will allow our students to graduate with the qualifications to pursue careers as speech-language patholo-

While the accreditation process was going on, prospective students were allowed to apply for the program and 15 were accepted. Betz says that small class size "will allow students to get individualized attention and graduate with significant hands-on experience practicing the diagnostic and treatment procedures they will use in their future careers as speech-language pathologists."

Ron Friedman, interim dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, of which Communication Sciences and Disorders is a member, says the accreditation speaks volumes about the quality of the department, the college, and the university as a whole.

"Since the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association is one of the more rigorous accrediting agencies, this accreditation raises our quality from both a branding and marketing perspective," noted Friedman. "In addition to increasing the market for graduate enrollment in CSD, it likely will have the added benefit of making the undergraduate program even more attractive. The net result for the university as a whole is attraction of high-profile students not only in CSD, but other areas of study as well." The new accreditation and graduate program will also increase the services the department provides to the community through its on-campus Communication Disorders Clinic.

"Our clinic provides speech-language therapy services free to community members," said Betz. "The addition of graduate students in our program will allow us to serve more clients and also provide services to clients with a wider range of communication disorders such as autism, stuttering, and dyslexia."

The accreditation is good for five years, with the department's inaugural annual review due in 2021.
