ARCOLA LIONS CLUB TO HOLD EYEGLASS SORT

The Heritage Lions in Hoagland delivered over 2,300 pairs of eyeglasses to Kevin McDermit, president of the Arcola Lions Club. The Arcola Lions will hold an "eyeglass sort" on March 19. Volunteers from several local Lions Clubs come together to sort thousands of eyeglasses brought in from area Lions locations. They

Last February, Lions Clubs from all over Northern Indiana contributed to the gathering, preparing and shipping of over 30,000 eyeglasses to the people of Honduras. Oftentimes, people in third world countries have no access to eyeglasses. When they receive these glasses from the Lions, their lives are changed forever. A hundred years ago, Helen Keller challenged the Lions to help the poor to see. She said "I appeal to you Lions, you who have your sight, your hearing, you who are strong and brave and kind. Will you not constitute yourselves Knights of the Blind in this crusade against darkness?".

Please consider placing your unneeded eyeglasses, sunglasses, reading glasses and hearing aids/batteries in any of the hundreds of collection boxes located throughout northern Indiana in libraries, funeral homes, nursing homes and optometrist offices. Please help the Lions help the less fortunate to see clearly, perhaps for the first time in their lives.

A FISH WITH A SORE THUMB

Changing ocean currents and temperatures can bring an invasion of jelly fish. The pumps of seas pools can suck jelly fish and small fish into the swimming area.

Serving overseas as a small-town boy in America has been intense, stressful and humorous! Enjoy a lighthearted story with me from our last 20 years overseas!"

Were you traumatized by swim lessons as a kid? My parents for many summers sent me to the local public pool to try to learn to swim. Each summer I'd progress a little, but all the others in my class would advance up to the next level as I lingered behind. Eventually I was in late elementary school and the others in my swim class were now a head or two shorter than me. I was finally allowed to stop classes. I wasn't "traumatized" by swimming nor the pool, but being the one who stuck out like a sore thumb. I love swimming and pools to this day. However, my wife and sons still think I don't know how to swim, though I feel like I am Olympic caliber at the doggy paddle and tread-

Overseas I have trouble going unnoticed at a pool too. One hot day I was with my family at a "sea pool" along the coast. The sea pool had a pump that would draw salty sea water into the pool and then pump it out every once in a while to clean it. We saw a dozen locals standing around the pool, but not getting in. My three sons and I put a foot in the water and it didn't seem that cold. We thought, "We'll have to show those wimpy locals how it is done." We all climbed down the ladder and enjoyed the refreshing water as all the locals watched on. After several minutes, one of my sons got my attention - a jelly fish was floating in the water. We all moved over to another side of the pool and were enjoying ourselves, when we spotted a few more jelly fish. Then our eyes adjusted to how the jelly fish floated about and we saw dozens more in the pool. We all made our way quickly to the ladder and out of the pool. It is hard to go unnoticed at a pool when you are a fish out of water.

THE TIME THAT YOU GAVE ME

My two football grandsons, Of which I am very proud.

A couple of things have happened recently that have caused me to reflect on the past. You might say two projects, the first attempt failed, but I still feel like I can pull it off. But the second has a resolution, and it doesn't seem to be a happy one.

Thinking about the time we have for living, some of us a long time, and some of us a shorter time. Something that we don't determine ourselves but is laid out for us. Every time I think about my youth and college days, this is the story that comes to mind. This story was told me by a friend, as far as l know it's true.

I had a roommate by the name of Roger, he wasn't very smart or very good looking, and we boys made fun of him quite often. But there was one thing that Roger could do, he was a good football player and this didn't always make us happy. Football was a big part of our life. I'm talking intramural football. We had our own league, our conference champions and our own super bowl, as our small college didn't have a football pro-

We were playing one day, and Roger was on the other team, and we were losing. Seemed like no matter how hard we tried Roger would get through the line and hurry our quarterback. We were losing and starting to get desperate, when we came up with a plan. We would let Roger slip through and then three of us will hit him at the same time. Kind of a scissors effect.

Our plan worked and Roger went down, only he didn't get up. We had apparently knocked him cold and he just lay there. Someone ran for help, and it seemed like hours, but the EMS arrived and took Rodger to the hospital. The football game was over. Now it didn't matter who won or lost. The next day we heard he was still in a coma but in following days we heard he was getting better. We all went to see him once, but it wasn't pleasant seeing him laying there like that.

A couple of weeks later we received word that Roger had died. That he was injured playing football with us was something that we would think of every day for the rest of our lives. A few days later a very attractive girl by the name of Susie came to my room and wanted to speak to me. It was quite a shock because you seldom see a girl in the boys dorm. We sat down and she told me she was Roger's girlfriend.

She loved Roger! He was the kindest person that she had ever met. He treated her Roger had been diagnosed with a rare form of leukemia, and his future was uncertain. She and Roger had lived knowing that, but they were trying to cope. Now Roger did not need to worry about that, he was in heaven with his heavenly Father and she would miss him everyday of her life. She couldn't imagine life without Roger. I told her I would give anything just to play one more game of football with Roger. But life has a way of going in spite of what happens. My problems don't seem so great anymore.

Forrest Earl Lacy was born August 17, 1894 in Antwerp, Ohio. The son of Ammi Richard born March 20, 1862 in Ohio and Elizabeth "Lizzie" (Barker) Lacy born September 26, 1858 in Illinois. This couple was married April 24, 1886.

March 12, 1890, a daughter, Fern C. was born in Carryall Township. Then came Forrest Earl in 1894. This was living in family Antwerp, Ohio.

By 1900, the Lacy family was still living in Antwerp. Ammi was working as a real estate agent and the children were in school. By 1910, the Lacy family was living on Perry Street in Antwerp. The Lacy children were still living at home.

The Lacy family had taken in a couple as boarders. Ross and Addie Londermuth. They were brother and sister. They also were teachers. I am guessing that they were teaching at Antwerp. Between the years of 1910 and 1915, Forrest had gotten a job working for the United States Rubber Company in Detroit, Michigan as a stockman. The family was living on Oswalt Street in Antwerp.

On May 17, 1917, Forrest went to the Antwerp precinct to register for the draft. He was listed as tall, slender build, gray eyes, dark brown hair and single. Forrest was inducted into the National Army out of Paulding May 25, 1918. He served with the 159th Depot Brigade as a private. He served with this unit until July 19, 1918. He then was transferred to Company H. 22nd engineers. He served until August 29, 1918. He was sent to the Provost Post Headquarters Company at Fort Benjamin Harrison until he was discharged. He was Honorably Discharged, December 22, 1918.

By 1920, after coming home from service, he lived with his parents on Oswalt Street Antwerp. He worked as a mail carrier until he got a job working for the sugar beet factory in Paulding as a chemist. After 1925, Forrest was living in Florida. On December 16, 1927, while in Florida, he married Sophia A. Stapula, born October 25, 1894 in Michigan. The daughter of Nels and Jo-Sophia hanna Stapula. served as a nurse in World War 1. She served in the Army Nurse Corps. She served until July 7, 1919.

By 1930, Forrest, Sophia and newly born daughter, Patricia A., born in 1929, were living in Tampa, Florida. Forrest was working as a salesman at a meat packing plant. And Sophia was a nurse. By 1931, Forrest, Sophia and Patricia, were still living in Tampa, Florida. Forrest was working as a service manager for Owen-John Tire Company.

On January 26, 1932, Forrest's father Ammi passed away. He was buried in Antwerp Riverside Cemetery. By 1940, this family moved back to Antwerp. Living at 431 South Main Street. Forrest was working as an assistant. But not clear where he worked. On June 9, 1940, Forrest's mother, Elizabeth passed away, She was buried with her husband.

After 1941, the family moved to 1155 Stanley Avenue, Detroit, Michigan. Where Forrest took a job working as a stockroom manager for the U.S. Army Depot for Vickors Incorporated. In 1942, Forrest registered for the World War Two draft. Because of his age, he was not selected. On June 30, 1943 at 7:30 A.M. Forrest passed away from a heart attack. He was at home at the time. He was buried at the Grandlawn Cemetery, Detroit, Michi-

May of 1944, Forrest received his Military tombstone marking his grave. Sometime after that, Sophia, retired from nursing and moved to Tacoma, Washington to live with her daughter and husband. She suffered from Parkinson's disease and heart ailments. She passed away, April 19, 1971. She is buried with a military marker of her own at Mountain View Memorial Park Cemetery in Lakewood, Washington.

"Our mission is to provide

Ohio with a transportation system that is safe, accessible, well maintained, and positioned for the future. By advancing these projects, we're fulfilling that mission," said ODOT Director Jack Marchbanks.

Applications for TRAC funding can be submitted by ODOT districts, metropolitan planning organizations, county engineers, transit authorities, county commissioners, municipalities, port authorities, or transportation improvement districts. To qualify, projects must improve capacity or reduce congestion and have an overall cost of more than $12 million. The 18 projects selected this year were among 28 applications submitted.

TRAC operates on an annual application cycle. The next application cycle begins on May 1, 2024 and ends on May 31, 2024.

At the completion of the application process TRAC members vote on the approval of the Major New Construction Program List of funding commitments for preliminary engineering, detailed design, right-of-way, and project construction. Projects receiving funding commitments are placed into three "tiers" based upon the level of project development:

• Tier I - The group of projects recommended for construction during the upcoming four-year construction period. • Tier II - The group of projects recommended for additional environmental, design or right-of-way development activities necessary before the projects would be available for construction. • Tier III - The group of projects with previous phases funded for construction in Tier I. Projects placed in Tier III status are part of a longrange funding plan to advance multiple phase projects.

NEW AGRICULTURAL TECHNOLOGY COURSE TO BE HELD IN PAULDING

Ohio State University Extension and Rhodes State College are partnering to provide a three-part education series focused on showing farmers how to use the data they are already collecting on their operations. Most farms are already collecting many kinds of data, including field boundaries, yield maps, soil test results, etc. This course will show attendees how to combine this data with publicly available data layers such as elevation and soils maps to better understand the performance of their management practices. The first session will take place from 6:00PM to 8:00PM on Tuesday, April 2nd, 2024, at the Paulding County Extension Office. Sessions two and three will occur on April 16th and April 23rd, also from 6:00PM to 8:00PM. There is no charge to attend this course, but attendance is expected at all three sessions. Because of the nature of this course, we are limiting registration to 12 farms, but each farm can have up to three attendees. A laptop computer will be provided for each farm to use during this course, but attendees may bring their own computers or tablets as well. Please call the Paulding County Extension Office or visit go.osu.edu/24AgTech-Course to register for this meeting. Agricultural data can be very useful for understanding the economic, environmental, and yield impacts that different management practices can have. Are you applying enough fertilizer to meet crop needs, or are you applying more than necessary, wasting valuable money? Are you properly evaluating the performance of your tried-andtrue corn hybrid based on your soil type? Have you wondered how you can connect the dots to get a better picture of your operation? This course can help to answer all of these questions. Dr. Jim Uphaus, Professor and Chair of the Agriculture program at Rhodes State College will be leading this three-part series. He farms near Leipsic, Ohio and integrates his real-life experiences into the course curriculum he teaches. In addition to his teaching, Dr. Uphaus is a Certified Crop Adviser and uses this knowledge to assist agronomists and farmers in utilizing their agronomic data. Prior to this role, he worked in wheat and corn breeding for fifteen years and studied plant genetics and breeding for his Ph.D. and M.S. degrees. In his current role, Dr. Uphaus is adapting his background in quantitative genetics, Agronomic experience, and multiple statisticomputer languages towards applying agricultural data. The Rhodes State College Agriculture program is currently supported by multiple USDA and a National Science Foundation grant.

For additional information on Agricultural Technology or other Farm Data Management, to register for a program or receive additional education, contact Sarah Noggle, Paulding County Extension Educator, Ag and Natural Resources, at noggle.17@osu.edu, or Rachel Cochran, CCA, Water Quality Extension Associate Paulding, Defiance, and Van Wert Counties, cochran.474@osu.edu. LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Improve or continue failing

Have you noticed how this Biden-Harris administration has cancelled every positive move that Trump gave us and the world? We were energy independent but Democrats prefer we purchase oil from terrorist enemies. Our southern border was under control but Democrats have made it and America the laughing stock of the world.

I don't know how any person claiming to support Democrats for leadership can sleep at night. The Bible (God's word) says that many will be blind to truth and right in the end of times. We have been there for a long time now and I think they are becoming more blind.

I claim that the Democrat party either owns or is owned by major media. Which ever way it is, I'm very glad that I don't belong to either. Both are so blind that they can't see that the Democrat party has been taken over by communist.

We wouldn't be so close to total failure if you paid attention to what is really going on in this world and kept your nose out of things like CNN or crap like George Soros pushes. Any person pushing anti-God crap on us isn't worthy of living here. You belong in a place like Russia or China.

I know I've written a lot of things I don't like writing but we have way too many blind people out there that need a good shock to wake up. I only pray that a small handful will awaken. We should never have to speak against our president but the last two Democrat presidents are both losers in my

Why do you hate Trump so much? I think the prime reason is that Democrats and their anti-God and antifree America major media allies have told you to. I'm sure you have all heard and know the story about the "squeaky wheel." It is very true, and the only thing Democrats know. I believe their moves today are all directed by Satan and his human generals. If this Democrat party can censor pastors they will eventually do that to you and that is a fact. I started writing letters to the editor in 2001. My letters addressed many different things and about 80% were published much like written. That is, until this family owned paper was sold to a liberal outfit. We were allowed one letter per month. I only got one letter printed in the whole last year with them, that's when I found the West Bend

I doubt there is a compassionate member, including his wife, in this Democrat party. I say that because all I see is them allowing Biden to keep making a fool of

I'm no doctor but I would guess President Biden has Alzheimer's disease. If right, there is no cure. He will only get worse until the end. If they cared anything for him they wouldn't permit him in public. They should do as Nancy did for President Reagan when he got this horrible disease. He lived the the rest of his life and died in dignity.

Now, that creates a problem for them. They picked a woman of color for vice president in hopes of saying they are not. Racist as a wake Americans know they are. What they considered a smart move has back fired. They should have chosen a qualified VP. Rather than this cackling nobody.

Based on Democrats have done in public I have to believe they want us saluting their gay flag, have boys in girls sports, provide murder of the unborn infants, insist on transgenderism, no Christians in military and much more anti-Christian and anti-human crap.

If you wish for America to improve if even survive, follow the example Texas and Oklahoma are trying to show us. America will never improve or even survive until we return to God. If you can't do that, what do you consider yourself to be?

PAGE 5 - WEST BEND NEWS - MARCH 4, 2024 CAN YOU SAVE TOO MUCH FOR A RAINY DAY?

"Save for a rainy day" is an old piece of advice — and a good one. But is it possible to save too much?

To begin with, what defines a "rainy day" in terms of financial needs? It could be any number of things: a temporary loss of employment, a major home or car repair, a large medical bill, and so on. If you did not have the money readily available to pay for these types of expenses, you might be forced to dip into your IRA, 401(k) or other retirement accounts, incurring taxes and possible penalties, as well as lowering the amount of money you'd have available for retirement. And that's why it's a good idea to build an emergency fund containing up to six months' worth of total expenses, with the money kept in a liquid, low-risk account that's separate from the accounts you use for your daily spending An emergency fund is valuable, but many people may be overfunding it. And while this isn't the biggest financial mistake one can make, it could result in some missed opportunities. For one thing, when you keep money in a low-risk account, you can generally count on your principal being protected, which means the money will be there for you when you need it —but the flip side is that this money likely won't grow very much, if at all. And if you're going to achieve your long-term goals, such as a comfortable retirement, you need your investment portfolio to provide you with significant growth potential within the context of your individual risk tolerance. So, any excess dollars kept in your rainy-day fund might be used to help fuel some growth-oriented investments.

You could also use these dollars to help diversify your investment portfolio. If you only owned one type of investment, your portfolio could take a big hit if a market downturn affected just that asset class. But by owning a mix of stocks, bonds, government securities and other investments, you can help reduce the impact of market volatility. (Keep in mind, though, that diversification, by itself, can't protect against all losses.)

Still, before deciding on what to do with extra money you might have in your emergency fund, how will you know if you indeed have too much? Up to six months' worth of total expenses may be adequate for most people but everyone's life is different. For example, if you have reason to believe your employment - or that of your spouse — may be in jeopardy in the near future, or if you anticipate the need for some renovations to your home, but not for a year or so, you might want more than six months of expenses tucked away in your emergency fund. Also, once you're retired, you may well want to keep a year's worth of expenses in the fund. If you need cash, you don't want to be forced to sell investments when their price may be down, especially since you have less time for them to re-

Ultimately, when thinking about how much to keep in your emergency fund, review your situation carefully and weigh as many variables as you can. And if you do decide your rainy-day fund is abundant, use any "overflow" in a way that can help you keep moving toward your financial

ODOT TO TEST ADVANCED DRONE OPERATIONS ALONG U.S. 33

The Ohio Department of Transportation's Uncrewed Aircraft Systems (UAS) Center recently received approval from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to fly a large drone over a portion of the U.S. 33 corridor northwest of Columbus. This special permission was needed to operate an uncrewed aircraft beyond the pilot's sight, typically referred to as beyond visual line of sight, or BVLOS, operations.

ODOT pilots will fly a 20-pound Censys Sentaero aircraft, which has a wingspan of 7.5 feet, along four miles of U.S. 33 between U.S. 42 and Watkins Road to test the capability of drone use for traffic monitoring and incident management. The on-board system to detect and avoid other aircraft with be supplemented with visual observers on the ground to keep eyes on the aircraft and bolster safety. This is the first aircraft of its size to be approved for this type of operation, and the second in the United States approved for operations over people and traffic without a parachute. Safety will remain paramount during this trial period.

"Drones can do a lot of things. Depending on the aircraft, they can be equipped with object detection and analytics, which form a critical piece in improving safety on the roadway," said UAS Center Director Rich Fox. "This is only the beginning. We're excited to test the potential benefits and leverage this special approval to continue integrating new UAS technology into agency operations."

While ODOT operates more than 1,000 stationary traffic cameras across the state, drones have the potential to provide visual coverage in areas without cameras in the event of an emergency. Deploying drones beyond the pilot's line of sight could get real-time information to ODOT more quickly to help identify congested areas, crashes, or hazards on the road.

Similarly, equipping drones with sensors to detect radiation or other chemical toxins could provide vital safety information to emergency responders. Drones can also provide real-time video during search and rescue missions to help rescue teams cover a larger area more quickly through the air than on the ground.

This approval from the FAA is valid for four years and will help facilitate integration of live drone footage to ODOT's Traffic Management Center, which could provide greater situational awareness to crews on the ground and improve traffic management. Ultimately, testing these types of operations along U.S. 33 will help determine the benefit of replicating this approach statewide to aid the public and first responders in emergency response and traffic monitoring, especially in rural areas. Dates for these test flights have not yet been determined.

NEW BOOK FROM TOP COYOTE RESEARCHER REVEALS NEW INSIGHTS, BENEFITS

Comedian Rodney Dangerfield often said, "I don't get no respect." The same catchphrase also perfectly applies to one of our most persistent wildlife predators—the coyote. The nation's foremost expert on coyotes and a professor at The Ohio State University, Stanley D. Gerht, offers a new perspective in his just-published book, "Coyotes Among Us."

The book is based on more than 20 years of research by Gehrt, professor of wildlife ecology in the College of its portrayal as a threat to humans and their pets in modern news sources, the scrawny animals are rarely shown in a favorable light.

of living with coyotes, and embrace the coyote as a brilliant survivor against all odds.

Postings on lifestyle and safety apps such as Nextdoor, Amazon Ring's Neighbors, and Citizen frequently warn neighbors of coyote sightings, especially when they are seen or heard during mating season (January - March) and when the young pups are dispersing from family groups (October - January).

Though harassed hunted for generations, today the covote persists and even thrives. With an innate ability to adjust to new climates and environments, it has developed an expansive range.

Once confined to the American West, coyotes now live in 49 states, across lower Canada, throughout Mexico, and all the way to Costa Rica. Only Hawaii has avoided their invasion.

The 144-page "Coyotes Among Us" includes stunning images of coyotes within their surprising habitats and is based on 22 years of research from the Urban Coyote Research Project, led by Gehrt in the Chicago metropolitan area. He is principal investigator of one of the largest studies of coyotes to date, capturing and tracking more than 1,450 coyotes.

In the project, a subset of coyotes is live-captured, collared, and released at their capture site. They are then monitored to understand how they live in urban areas and how they interact with other wildlife, domestic animals, and humans.

Coyote habitat ranges from rural prairie to urban overpasses; it is the largest animal to regularly live wild within city limits. The coyote continues to overcome the ceaseless intrusion of urban development to create a bright and flourishing future, providing its human neighbors a surprising number of benefits, Gehrt noted in the book.

"Since 2000, we've been studying coyotes and their incredible ability to adapt and thrive as the top predator in urban environments," Gehrt said. "Coyotes are here to stay—and the first step in learning to coexist is for us to better understand them."

Coyote figures were common to Native American religions and in folklore. A popu-Looney cartoon featured the iconic adversaries Wile E. Coyote and the Road Runner. Although every single one of the coyote's ideas failed — hilariously defeated by gravity, falling rocks, glue mishaps and, most commonly, the misuse of dynamite, the animal displayed admirable persistence and creativity, just as they do in the real world.
